

WISCONSIN GROUP BOBS UP AGAIN WITH PLATFORM

Progressives Arrive at Kansas City With a Program Embarrassing to the Administration.

LIKELY TO BE BEATEN AS USUAL

Planks Touch on Corruption, Muscle Shoals, War in Nicaragua and Other Important Topics.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—The Wisconsin delegation is again, from the point of view of orthodox Republicans, the villain of the piece. Eight years ago, at Chicago, the delegation presented its Progressive platform to the convention and was shot down. Four years ago it did the same at Cleveland with the same result.

On the delegation this year there are 17 Progressives, led by Senators La Follette and Blaine, and nine who call themselves regular Republicans.

The Progressives are pledged to support Senator Norris for the presidential nomination. One of the number, possibly La Follette, will be chosen as the Wisconsin Republican on the Resolutions Committee. He will present the Progressive platform to that committee, will be voted down, and then will carry the platform, in the form of a minority report, before the convention.

Amid a whoop of self-conscious Republican ridicule, the heretics of the Progressives—their demands for Government operation of Muscle Shoals, for an anti-corruption plank that calls a spade a spade, for a plank condemning the use of the Marines in Nicaragua, and for other pronouncements not to the liking of the dominant wing of the party—will be rejected and the platform brought in by Senator Smoot will be adopted.

Point of Wisconsin Platform

The Wisconsin platform is tentatively drawn contains these high points:

(1) A vigorous declaration against the "monopolization of electric light, heat and power," coupled with a demand for the development and operation by the Federal Government of great electricity-generating plants at Muscle Shoals, Bonneville Dam and other strategic points.

(2) A demand for permanent retention of the Government's coal, oil, water power and timber resources in the hands of the people.

(3) A denunciation of the control of foreign policy under recent administrations by the financial imperialists, oil monopolists and international bankers.

(4) A specific attack upon the "illegal war" waged by the administration in Nicaragua, with a demand for the withdrawal of our armed forces now in that country and a Senate investigation of the attitude of the United States toward Central America, "to the end that a constructive policy of non-interference in the domestic affairs of those countries may be formulated."

(5) Denunciation of the administration's navy building program.

For McNary-Haugen Bill.

(6) A plank urging the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill, the reduction of rail rates on farm products and the "downward revision" of the exorbitant tariff duties on manufactured products."

7. A demand for legislation curtailing the use of the injunction in labor disputes.

8. A denunciation of the corrupt forces within the Republican party.

9. A plank favoring maintenance of the Federal inheritance tax.

(10) A plank calling for early adoption of the Norris amendment to abolish the "lame duck" session of Congress.

(11) A plank advocating a deep waterway from the great lakes to the sea.

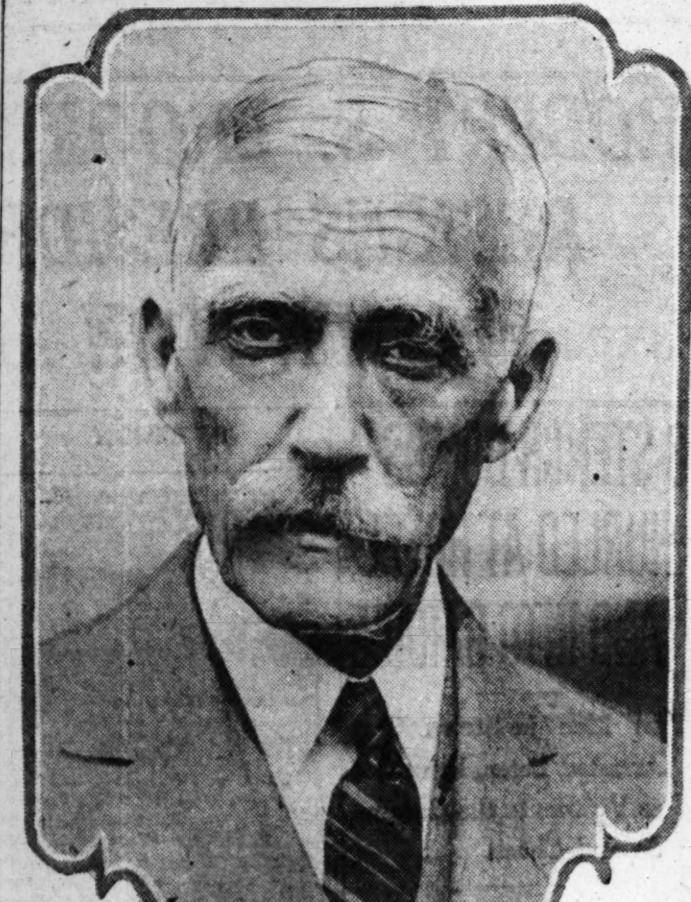

(12) A demand for the revision of the Federal Reserve act so that it shall cease to be an instrument for the advantage of stock market speculators and international bankers" and shall be used "for the benefit of American farmers, merchants, manufacturers, home builders and for other constructive purposes."

(13) In accordance with the result of a referendum held in Wisconsin in 1928, the platform will come out for modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale and manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer under Government supervision.

Fall's Health Improved.

EL PASO, Tex., June 11.—Albert E. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, who returned home unexpectedly Saturday night from California is improved in health, his daughter, Mrs. Alexine Chase said yesterday. The former Cabinet member declined to receive newspaper men. He will rest here a few days and then go to his ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., Mrs. Chase said.

phase of the connection, as he stood on the rear platform of the Pennsylvania delegation's special train with Gov. John S. Fisher, in the Union Station yards. Holder of the balance of power at the Republican convention, the man most feared by strong candidates and whose favor might make an obscure candidate a leading contestant for the nomination, he seemed singularly frail. He wore a gray suit that matched his drooping gray mustache.

The special train on which the Pennsylvania Republican leaders passed through the city was but one of three trains bearing Pennsylvania delegates. The first arrived at 8:15, remained in the Union Station yards for 20 minutes and pulled out for Kansas City. The second arrived at 8:30, and the third at 8:45, both pulling out within a few minutes.

The 39 delegates from Massachusetts, whose special train entered the city at 12:30 p.m. and pulled out for Kansas City 15 minutes later, are instructed for Hoover on the basis of a primary ballot.

Explaining organization of the "allies," the Indiana presidential candidate declared that its formation was necessary to prevent Hoover from getting the nomination, and he insisted that this task had been accomplished.

"I can say with some degree of assurance," Watson declared, "that Herbert Hoover has been stopped. I have the same assurance that the East is waking up."

When he then announced that the candidates who had entered into the coalition with him had been now foot loose, this group included the Indiana leader, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, the leading anti-Hoover candidate in the number of votes pledged.

Eastern Candidates.

Candidates from other parts of the country, however, particularly those from the Atlantic seaboard, are hopeful of favorably considering the Indiana's nomination, as is the Commerce Secretary from California. The group of those suggested from the Eastern seaboard includes the names of Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts, Senators Moses of New Hampshire, and Edge of New Jersey, Representatives Tilson of Connecticut, and Frank L. Bowles of New York.

These also talk in some quarters of Senator McNary of Oregon, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill.

These also talk in some quarters of Senator Curtis of Kansas, who had been counted one of the allies, broke away from the independent movement yesterday when he announced upon his arrival that he was running alone.

that Mr. Nasel would continue to act as head of the board. It seemed likely today that this would be done, but no positive decision appears to have been made.

Mr. Brookings, long a bachelor, was married in Baltimore nearly a year ago to Miss Isabel Valle January, who was also a large giver to the university, one of the newer halls bearing the name of her husband.

Because of the illness of President Brookings, there has been delay in selecting a chancellor for the university, to succeed former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley, who died last fall. Brookings insisted in his refusal to indicate in advance how the 70 votes of Pennsylvania would be employed in the convention.

HOOVER FORCES LEAN TO CURTIS FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Secretary's Supporters Confident, Turn to Discussion of His Probable Running Mate.

FARM BELT MAN THOUGHT ADVISABLE

Deneen, Allen and McKelvie Also Mentioned Favorably—Some Talk of Hyde, Baker and Capper.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Confidence in the Hoover camp mounted to the point today where a number of the Commerce Secretary's supporters moved on to a discussion of the vice presidency.

While a determination of second place on the ticket is out of the question until a standard bearer has been selected, some of the Hooverites accepted the nomination of their chieftain as a foregone conclusion and turned their attention to the question of a satisfactory running mate.

From the very outset there was considerable talk that because of the present situation the vice presidential nominee should be a man from midwest farm belt. It was suggested that the two Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois, presented the most fruitful field, although others contend that the area could be widened to include the stretch between the Alleghenies and the Rockies.

Among Those Mentioned.

Of the upwards of a score of names brought forward for the post, however, that of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas has stood out prominently because of his geographical location in the virtual heart of the farm belt, but some friction has developed between the Hoover and Curtis managers which may throw a different light upon the situation. Despite his associations that he is a candidate only for the presidency, some of the Senator's friends insist that he will take the second place if offered.

Another name occupying a conspicuous position is that of Senator Charles Deneen of Illinois, a delegate-at-large to the convention and the man who only a few months ago administered a drubbing to the Thompson-Crowe-Small organization in Illinois.

Two others—Henry J. Allen, former Governor of Kansas, and Sam McEvily, former Governor of Nebraska—also have been discussed. Like Curtis, their geographical location fits into the situation, but unlike the Kansas Senator, both have been identified with the Hoover forces in pre-convention battles.

In fact it has been announced that Baker would defer on the two Lowden secondings.

But to whom there seems to be some question about that. After the Governor's arrival here it became known that his acceptance of the Lowden invitation was conditional upon it being the desire of the Missouri delegation that he should deliver the speech.

So although personally he is willing to speak for Lowden he will not do so, unless it is agreeable to the Missouri delegates, and pending the decision the Governor's semi-official representative is busy trying to induce a switch on delegates from Lowden to Hoover.

Still for Lowden.

The Governor, it will be recalled, started out early in the campaign for Speaker Longworth for the presidential nomination. When it appeared that Longworth was not getting anywhere, he quite easily switched to Former Secretary Hughes. Nothing in the way of an active Hughes organization having developed Baker announced Lowden was acceptable to him. So far as known the Governor is still a Lowden supporter.

BANDSMEN PLAN TO GIVE
VOLUNTEER CONCERTS IN PARK

Move Contemplated in Support Fight for Increased Municipal Appropriation.

Announcement that the Musicians' Union is planning a series of park concerts to be given in support of the union's fight for an increased municipal appropriation for concerts was made at the Central Trades meeting yesterday by Steve Butler, business agent of the Musicians' Local No. 2.

Butler said the plan has been approved by the Executive Committee of the union and will be presented to members at a mass meeting this week. Tentative plans call for concerts over a period of six weeks.

The concerts will not conflict with the regular park concerts, which start this month, Butler said.

"There are so few of the municipal concerts that there will be no trouble on that score," he declared.

The Musicians' Union requested a

$25,000 appropriation for park

concerts this year. Last year $12,000 was appropriated and it is to be $10,000 for this season. The union contends that the concerts should be placed on the same basis as the zoo and will present a performance at the general election for the establishment of a special tax for the 'concerts.'

WATSON ASSAILS HOOVER AT FARM CANDIDATE RALLY

Indiana Senator Addresses Meeting at Kansas City
Sponsored by "Allies" Opposing Secretary.

CRITICISES RIVAL'S SILENCE ON ISSUES

Advices Against Demand for Plank in 1928 Republican Platform, Specifying Means of Farm Relief

BY RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who described himself as "an old-fashioned stand-patter" as if such a description were needed—at farmers' candidate rally Saturday night attacked Herbert Hoover with all the vehemence that has invariably marked the anti-Hoover speeches of Senator Reed of Missouri.

The meeting was held at the Shubert Theater under auspices of the "allies" who are out to block Hoover's nomination for the presidency. The only other candidate besides Watson on the platform was Senator Guy D. Goff, West Virginia's favorite son. The crowd, which comfortably filled the theater, was mostly anti-Hoover and played no favorites with the "allies." It impartially appraised the mention of the names of the other candidates—Lowden, Curtis and Dawes.

Watson was introduced in a lengthy speech by Gov. McMullan of Nebraska. Hoover was the main target, but in talking about the equalization fee in the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill the Indiana Senator had to put some strictures, in a very respectable way, of course, on the judgment of President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Questions Hoover's Stand.

Like Reed, Watson charged that Hoover as Food Administrator fixed the price of wheat at $2.20 a bushel during the war, and that this wheat was resold by England for $2.50 to $2.75 a bushel.

"Do you know how my friend Secretary Hoover stands on the tariff question?" Watson began. "I want to know what principles he would carry out if seated. This is not an unkind question, as some of Hoover's supporters have intimated. I do know that he spent 23 formative years in England, breathed the English atmosphere and naturally got the English bent. All during these 23 formative years England was a free trade country and it would be natural for him to be bound by English policies and ideals. I want to know if he can feed on that diet. He is an educated man and has an ample vocabulary, and if he wants, he can tell us whether he believes in protection."

This was greeted with a rebel yell of approval.

When Watson said that the man that the Republicans will nominate next week for President should stand "with a face of flint against the World Court," he was greeted with prolonged applause.

Reading from a copy of Politics, the anti-Hoover magazine published by Frank J. Hale, a discharged prohibition enforcement officer, Watson declared that in 1920, "when Hoover was running for the presidency on both the Republican and Democratic tickets," Hoover had stated that he would stand for the party that he professed.

Instantaneous Conversions.

"I am a Methodist," Watson continued, "and, of course, believe in instantaneous conversion in religion, but not in politics. If Secretary Hoover has changed his mind, why doesn't he let the American people in on the secret?"

"That same year Senator Fess of Ohio, who will deliver the keynote address next week, said that the Republican party could not have an internationalist as a standard bearer," Watson added.

"Mr. Hoover may have changed his mind during the 11 or 12 years he has served in the country, but if he has, why doesn't he say so? If he says that he's changed his mind I'll believe him, but I'd feel much better if he had made that explanation several months ago and not just a few days before the convention."

"I won't enter upon Nicaragua, because it doesn't enter the discussion here," Watson continued. "But I don't know how some people stand on that question."

Incidentally, he left the crowd in the dark as to how he himself stood on this particular question.

World Trade Policy, Post Up.

He did state, however, that he believed in strict enforcement of the present immigration laws, and was for liberal pensions for all former service men. He asserted Hoover had not expressed himself on these subjects.

"I also believe that the European governments should pay us every dollar they borrowed from us during and after the war," he said.

Senator Curtis Only Key To Republican Deadlock, Says William Allen White

Kansas Editor's Poll of Farm Readers Resulted in 2-to-1 Vote Against McNary-Haugen Bill, He Asserts.

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Sunday's news can be dismissed in two lines.

Coolidge has written no statement—yet. Curtis is the only key to the deadlock. Last week three men close to the President spent hours with him discussing the situation. One of them, Dwight W. Morrow, the other Senator Charles Curtis, the other Senator Charles Curtis. To none of them did he give the slightest hint that he intended to make a statement, write a letter, or give the convention warning of his intention. To all of them he gave the impression that he was tremendously annoyed by developments and Warren at least went away with the feeling that the President would like the tremendous distinction of having a unanimous first ballot nomination to refuse. It would guarantee a place in history.

Curtis Remains Neutral.
So much for item number one. Now for item number two. Curtis has not joined the allies. He is maintaining the attitude of malvolio, neutrality toward the farm crowd. Watson is going through the corridor shaking hands and at odds with farmers, renting halls and making rabble-rousing speeches. Curtis in his room is receiving delegations, sitting tight. The Kansas delegation was the tightest delegation in the convention. It has no second choice.

Curtis is deeply wise. He knows that if the allies really try to get together before a deadlock in lifting delegates, Hoover will get more in the shake down than the compromise candidate. Whereas, if the allies against Hoover wear Hoover down, he will be natural, will have been rabble rousing, but has been maintaining a dignified attitude friendly to all candidates, will be the key to the deadlock. Mellon or Coolidge still can dominate this convention. They could nominate Coolidge. They could nominate Hoover. They could make a situation which would name Curtis; they would not nominate Lowden, Dawes or Watson because of the record of these men on the McNary-Haugen bill.

This same weariness of the flesh is manifest in the delegates. No one is talking prohibition. The New York delegates have made no impression. No one is voicing opinions on the World Court, Nicaragua, or anything pertaining to foreign relations. After 10 o'clock one can tread alone in solitary magnificence, the corridors of the two political hotels, meeting only a few stragglers. Rumors are not ripe. No one is excited. Hoover will continue to concentrate on the credentials, but no one cares. At least as in 1912 the control of the Committee on Credentials was vital as the capture of Verdun.

Can't Remember Keynote Speech.
I talked to a man who had read the keynote speech. He could not remember a syllable of it.

The convention will meet because it is probably easier to meet than to wrangle in a hotel. It will name a candidate because of the pressure of the order of business. But it will without spontaneity, without ginging, stale, flat and unprofitable. When a great party like the Republican party resolves to keep business out of politics and politics out of business, when it abandons the policies of its founders to make government an agency of human welfare, the best minds of the country go into business and partake of the profits. They are induced by lot of animated rubber stamps, debating solemnly whether to bow down in worship to an adding machine like Hoover, or a cream separator like Lowden, or a back-firing tractor like Dawes.

Watson was introduced in a lengthy speech by Gov. McMullan of Nebraska. Hoover was the main target, but in talking about the equalization fee in the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill the Indiana Senator had to put some strictures, in a very respectable way, of course, on the judgment of President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Little Emotion in Sight.

Now all this would seem to indicate some emotional interest in the crowds that mill through the hotels before the convention opens. But the truth is that the crowds are without emotion. In 1912 arms were in the air, voices lifted and heads wagging all along Michigan avenue. But here no one is calling anyone a liar. Mean things are about all candidates by all the friends of other candidates without resentment and without much conviction.

Even Hoover, who is in the lead, evokes little enthusiasm here. His crowd is academic, like Wilson's in Baltimore. And if the crowd has no enthusiasm for Hoover, it has no confidence in Lowden. Voices are hushed in the lobbies and on the street. The thing resembles no other great public ceremony as much as it resembles the funeral of McKinley. Solemn-faced, sad-continued. "All the nations but France have made an agreement to pay, and I believe that France should pay everything that she owes us."

Closing his direct attacks on Hoover, Watson had the crowd with him when he declared he would join no third party if Hoover were nominated, just as if anyone could conceive of such a thing.

"If Hoover is nominated," he asserted in stentorian tones, "I'll support the platform!" This brought considerable applause.

"And that means that I'll support the candidate," he added. "In a much louder tone. This rhetorical trick caused the audience to smile at its own gullibility.

Advice on Farm Demands.

Watson said that it would be a mistake to mention the McNary-Haugen bill by name, or the equalization fee by specific terms in the 1928 platform. He stated that he was irrevocably wedded to the equalization fee, but could see no reason for pledging the party to any specific solution beyond insistence that the proposed remedy should consider the disposal of surplus products. This was a slap at the various credit schemes that have been advanced as a farm problem solution.

"Unless we arrive at some solution, the American farmers will continue to be driven from the farms to the cities," he shouted in his peroration. "When the urban population greatly overbalances the rural population some Congress dominated by the cities will put all agricultural products on the free list to reduce living costs. That will mean that we will put the wooden shoes of the European peasant on the feet of the American farmer. This is not a goblin plucked out of the moonbeams of imagination. It is my conscientious conclusion after a conscientious study."

Hoover Floor Manager Chosen.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Representative Franklin W. Fort of East Orange, N. J., was selected today as floor manager of the Hoover forces when the convention actually gets under way.

WOMEN URGE PLANKS FOR PARTY PLATFORM

Drys Want Enforcement Declaration, Wets Oppose Any Mention of Subject.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—Fostering plans already out by a committee of the various dry organizations of the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement yesterday opened a convention. Almost their first action was the approval of a resolution asking the party conventions to put enforcement in the hands of friends of the law and to enact laws of the hour.

Typically Republican conventions are calm. This one is with spirit, without sparkle, almost without interest. Yet, any hour into this dishwater may drop the re-agent which will turn it into effervescent vitriol. For all the elements of bitterness, jealousy, ambition and greedy wrath lie quiescent under the soapy surface of the hour.

Says Leaders Lack Color.
The reason for this political atrophy lies in the lack of powerful and interesting leaders. Not only are the presidential candidates colorless men, but the convention is not an epiphany in a carload of these leaders who are described as public questions are discussed excepting the McNary-Haugen bill, and that in a desultory way. There is more interest in the McNary-Haugen bill here than there is on the farms in the Missouri Valley.

Recently the Emporia Gazette took a poll of the rural routes around Emporia, sending out postcards to the farmers, asking them to vote for or against the McNary-Haugen bill. The surprising thing was that the response was less than 50 per cent, almost 40 per cent, which indicated a lack of interest in the whole question, and when the voters came in they were 2 to 1 against the McNary-Haugen bill.

This same weariness of the flesh is manifest in the delegates. No one is talking prohibition. The New York delegates have made no impression. No one is voicing opinions on the World Court, Nicaragua, or anything pertaining to foreign relations. After 10 o'clock one can tread alone in solitary magnificence, the corridors of the two political hotels, meeting only a few stragglers. Rumors are not ripe. No one is excited. Hoover will continue to concentrate on the credentials, but no one cares. At least as in 1912 the control of the Committee on Credentials was vital as the capture of Verdun.

Similar Expressions
Similar expressions came from representatives of affiliated organizations, including the Salvation Army, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Council of Women for Home Missions, the Federation of Women's Foreign Mission Boards and the Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Three Republican women will appear for the League of Women Voters before the Resolutions Committee tomorrow—James W. Morrison of Chicago, Mrs. George Gilhorn of St. Louis and Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith of Farmington, Conn., whose husband was a member of Roosevelt's "Tennis Cabinet." The league offers the National Woman's party's single plank for an "equal rights" constitutional amendment as "blanket legislation" preventing protective laws for women. Another plank, for a deep sea channel to the Great Lakes, is supported by the only woman member of the committee favoring the channel. Mrs. C. N. Erwin of St. Paul, Minn., who arrived yesterday.

Watson's Dry Meeting

Watson's dry meeting opened with a declaration by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, Mass., national chairman of the committee, that "the women of the country want one issue above all others, the dry issue, settled satisfactorily in the party platforms."

She said the committee would hold a similar meeting in Houston during the Democratic convention.

Mr. John D. Sherman
Mr. John D. Sherman, a past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, one of the women's organizations affiliated with the committee, declared that "we have a right to demand that those who ask our suffrage make a straight statement of their views and intentions."

ONE KILLED AND SEVEN HURT IN ARKANSAS STORM

Casualties in One Family at Newport—Wind Demolishes Buildings, Damages Power Lines.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, Ark., June 11.—A windstorm demolished the residence of James F. Kent on the Mantooth farm at 4 a. m. Saturday, injuring the eight members of the family, one fatally.

Margaret Kent, 12 years old, suffered a skull fracture and died last night. Her sister, Lucille, 7 years old, was hurt internally. Mrs. Kent received a scalp wound, a compound fracture of the elbow and a serious injury to one leg. Kent suffered injuries to his scalp, shoulder and hand. His three sons were scratched and bruised. Mrs. Kent and Lucille are in serious condition.

The Mantooth farm is about three miles across the White River from Newport. The wind came from the direction of Surrounded Hill and tore down many trees and a few barns, and spent itself south of here. On the J. M. Cravens place, trees were blown down.

In Newport the wind did some damage to property, blowing down a few trees and tearing away many tree limbs. Windows were broken and store signs and awnings blown down.

The family of Buck Barnes, near the Mantooth place, escaped by taking refuge in a storm cellar just before their house and barn were blown away.

The residence of Virgil Hutchinsson, on an island, and the home of Albert Martin, near by, were damaged.

Rising Black and St. Francis Rivers Threaten Farm Lands.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., June 11.—
The Black and St. Francis rivers in Southeast Missouri were rising rapidly yesterday as a result of the heavy rain last night, and it is expected that farmers in Butler and Dunklin Counties will suffer losses due to the inundation of fields.

The Black River stage was 15.6 feet here yesterday, and the stream was reported still rising for a distance of 40 miles north of here. A number of farms in Drainage District No. 7 were reported under water and should the river reach 18 feet at Poplar Bluff Tuesday, as predicted, many thousands of acres on the Missouri-Arkansas line will be covered.

The St. Francis River was within seven inches of the levee top at Holcomb, Mo., in Dunklin County, yesterday. A force of 100 men were working to raise the levee in an effort to keep the water from flooding 25,000 acres of standing crops. The water is over United States Highway No. 60 for a distance of a mile near Fisk, and traffic has been stopped on United States Highway No. 61 at Greenville by the overflow.

More Attractive After She Gained Needed Weight

Is your face drawn and pinched? Your skin flabby? Are your cheeks sunken with great hollows under the eyes? Does your figure show unbecoming angles instead of the softly rounded slimness of youth?

All these conditions rob you of attractiveness and make you look old. But worst of all, these may actually be the symptoms of simple anemia—that dread disease so often suffered by women.

There's nothing so good as McCoy's Tablets to put on firm flesh, round out face and figure and help build rich, red blood.

If so you need a few pounds of flesh to round out the hollows, if you want to get back oldtime energy and health, get a box of McCoy's Tablets today. Just a short treatment will make you look and feel like a new person.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking a sixty-cent box of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One-Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feels completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

TRANS-PACIFIC FLYERS PLAN TO CONTINUE FLIGHT AROUND WORLD IN SOUTHERN CROSS

After Rest at Sydney, Goal of 7800-Mile Journey, Aviators Will Fly 600 Miles to Melbourne Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 11.—A desire to continue around the world today gripped the two Australian pilots of the monoplane Southern Cross as they rested with their two American companions after their flight from Oakland Cal.

However, the ship that proved so airworthy on the treacherous 7800-mile course will not remain idle during formulation of the world flight plans, as the crew will take off Wednesday for Melbourne. The Melbourne trip, about 600 miles, was announced today by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and Charles Ulm, the Australian pilots, after they made known their hopes for a world tour.

With the praise of Australians at Brisbane and Sydney still fresh in their memories, the Americans, Harry W. Lyon, navigator, and James W. Warner, radio operator, also were to gain their share of the honors in the Southern city. Lyon expects to fly back to Sydney on Thursday and sail for the United States. Warner has not made known exactly what he plans to do after arriving at Melbourne.

Warner's His Hat.

Sydney forgot work yesterday and spent the day with the flying flyers. A civic reception was held at the City Hall. Hundreds of persons who were unable to gain admittance to the hall enthusiastically cheered the airmen on their arrival at the place.

Warner and his panama hat again figured as interesting sidelights of the Sydney visit. When Warner and his three companions arrived at Mascot aerodrome yesterday the radio man was so enthusiastically greeted by the jostling crowd that he lost his hat. He appeared worried over the loss but managed to face the crowd smiling and bareheaded. The headgear eventually was restored to him.

Today the civic commissioner requested that Warner favor the Australian commonwealth with a remembrance—his cherished panama. This the radio man did amid loud cheers.

$25,000 From Government.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith announced that he and Ulm intended to fly the Southern Cross around the world and that the start would be made from Sydney in a few days. They have not made it clear whether they intend proceeding on this journey from Melbourne or return to Sydney.

Wherever the flyers go they are greeted with intense enthusiasm. The Australian Government has taken cognizance of the trans-Pacific flight by awarding Kingsford-Smith and Ulm, under whose direction the planes were laid and carried out, $25,000 (25,000) with no restriction as to how it may be used. It is understood that the flyers will make use of the money in carrying out their world flight.

An announcement of the world flight came before the thousands of admirers of the crew finished congratulations on the successful conquest of 7800 miles of treacherous Pacific air lanes. It was also pointed out that the tri-motored plane had been rebuilt from a ship constructed for Capt. George H. Wilkins in his Arctic explorations, and bore the marks of many flights.

Plane Proves Sturdiness.

In the flight here, the Southern Cross repeatedly demonstrated its worthiness. On the 2400-mile hop from Oakland to the Hawaiian Islands it won the first skirmish with the elements. Again on the 512-mile trip to Suva, Fiji, the ship was forced above to emerge still "on the target." Then came the hardest flight of all. Drops of as much as 400 feet resulted when the plane ran into sharp downward currents on the 1720-mile leg to Brisbane. The 500-mile trip along the coast from Brisbane to Sydney was made virtually without incident. The flight was completed in about 9 hours, over a period of less than 10 days.

The Americans won Australians from the start. When Kingsford-Smith and Ulm emerged from the plane to receive the welcome of their parents, the two Americans also were greeted like homecoming sons. It is understood a movement has been started in the United States to raise a purse for Lyon and Warner equal to or even greater than the sum presented the Australians.

Test a Maytag at Our expense

THIS offer is to show you what a world of difference the Maytag makes in washday, and how definitely the Maytag differs from other washers. Over a million times the Maytag has sold itself by demonstrating its ability to save time and effort, to do an average washing in an hour, to remove the most stubborn edge-dirt without hand-rubbing. You are invited to wash with the Maytag in your own home without cost or obligation so that you may see its many outstanding advantages with your own eyes.

The Original Gyrafoam Washer with Cast-Aluminum Tub

The gyrafoam principle of water washing was a Maytag idea originated over five years ago. It revolutionized washing methods, made washing easier on the woman, easier on the clothes. At the same time, the Maytag introduced its cast-aluminum tub. A tub of satin smoothness, yet scientifically shaped to produce washing effects of a gentleness and thoroughness never before known.

World Leadership

In less than 600 days after the introduction of these remarkable features, the Maytag won world leadership, and it maintains this leadership today. The many variations of these original Maytag features found in present-day washers is a tribute to Maytag achievement. But in addition to these features the Maytag now offers you a Roller Water Remover with large, soft rolls which wring everything evenly dry and spare the buttons—the utmost in safety, convenience and thoroughness.

Try this remarkable washer without cost or obligation. Avoid disappointment by making a test which will remove all doubt.

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss.

NANKING SEEKS RECALL OF ALIEN TROOPS IN CHINA

Manifesto Addressed to Powers Having Treaty Relations Also Urges Revision of Pacts.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, June 11.—The Nanking Government Council, the Nanking Government official news agency announces, has drawn up a manifesto addressed to the Powers having treaties with China, which states: "Foreign troops must be withdrawn from China immediately."

"The presence of foreign troops is causing mutual suspicion. The practice of the Powers in sending forces to whatever part of Chinese territory where their nationals happen to reside, will compel the Nationalists to exclude foreigners from the interior of China."

The manifesto declares that the reconstruction phase of the revolution has arrived but that it cannot be effectively carried out because of restrictions imposed on China by treaties. "Therefore, the Nationalists hope that the Powers will agree to immediate treaty revision."

The Nanking Government's inability to discipline Feng, and the imbroglio into which Feng's soldiers plunged the Nationalists were thought to have brought about Chiang Kai-shek's resignation.

Chiang, in a statement issued at Nanking, said that he regarded the military phase of the revolution as completed and therefore saw no need of his continuing the post of commander in chief.

Refugees Throng Into Legation Area in Pekin for Safety.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, June 11.—With Pekin all but isolated, refugees were thronging the legation area today. A note of the foreign diplomats to the Nationalists charging bad faith in carrying out an agreement for the peaceful occupation was unanswered.

The Shansi Governor, Yen Hsian, today entered Pekin at noon in an automobile accompanied by a small bodyguard, and declared that he had two main purposes to carry out—the preservation of peace and the dispersal of all enemy troops from the Northern area.

Fighting was in progress to the north of Tientsin and it was thought probable that Feng Yu-hsiang would not arrive in Pekin until he had occupied Tientsin.

Travelers Robbed, Wire Seized.

Outlaw troops were robbing all travelers, even those bearing diplomatic credentials, and highwaymen from the city were engaged as far as automobile travel. Telegraphic communication was severed. Railroads, trains were tied up in the city, adding to the number of refugees. Among them was the second wife of the Emperor Kwang Hsu with her retinue.

Rumors were ripe concerning the fate of the Forty-seventh Northern Brigade, which had been policing the city until Nationalist troops arrived. The foreign diplomats declared that their safe evacuation had been agreed to by the Nationalist Government and that this agreement had been violated. Gen. Pao Yu-lin, their commander, took refuge in the legation quarter after it was reported that a plot to kidnap him was afoot. One report said that two of his bodyguards had died before firing squad.

Diplomats Virtually Ignored.

Feng's brigade was withdrawing peacefully when it was intercepted in Tungchow by a detachment of Feng's forces, surrounded and marched back to the city.

The Diplomatic Corps held a hurried meeting. The American, British, Japanese and Dutch Ministers, accompanied by their Chinese secretaries and military attaches in full uniform, hurried to Pao's camp.

A strongly worded note was immediately sent to the Nanking Nationalists.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has resigned as commander in chief of the Nationalist armies and chairman of the Nationalist Military Council. Feng, the action of whose forces brought the protest, was today regarded as the dominating figure in China. His minister, T. Wang, was expected to become Nationalist Foreign Minister. Wang stated that he would pursue a "strong attitude" toward foreigners and in view of this it was predicted that little attention would be paid to the note of the diplomats.

THREE WOMEN SEEK ORIGIN OF THE 'ARABIAN NIGHTS'

They Are of the Opinion That Many of Stories Had Their Locale in Spain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Three women, whose ambition is to solve the origin of the book of the "Thousand and One Nights," and to find the lost palace of Haroun Al-Raschid, embarked on their ancient literary quest Saturday. Their destination is Bagdad, ancient capital of Arabia.

The three, financing their own expedition, are Mrs. John Quincy Adams, wife of Maj. Adams of the United States Marines; Mrs. Gertrude T. Baskin of McGill University, Montreal, and Miss Iola Plaza of Toronto, Ontario.

They explained that their search has grown out of their interest in Arabic literature and of the belief that many of the so-called "Arabian Nights" stories had their locale in Spain and were told originally by Spanish poets.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 11.—Incensed because older children with whom he was playing cards forced him to leave the game, Marion Parker Boyd, 7 years old, procured a shotgun at his home at Valley Station, near here, yesterday, and killed Bessie Bryson, 17, who was taking care of the children while their parents were away.

Examiner Davis promptly overruled the objection.

The Terminal Railroad Association is alone in its opposition to the use of the Free Bridge by a competing railroad as the City of St. Louis, the Business Men's Association of South St. Louis and the St. Louis Shippers' Conference Association have intervened in support of the Manufacturers' application.

City Counselor Muench and Assistant City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris are here to explain the City's stand in favor of use of the Municipal bridge for the transfer of rail freight between the west and east sides.

Hillie Marsh, chief engineer of the Manufacturers' Railway, explained under cross-examination by Pierce that the Manufacturers now had three classification yards along its line with a combined capacity of 750 cars but that it planned to extend its riverfront yard southward upon property owned by the Busch estate to give facilities for 2000 cars, if the commission permits it to extend its services across the river.

Another classification yard would also be built on the east side near the end of the eastern approach of the bridge on property owned by the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad, which would be capable of handling 2500 cars, Marsh said.

CLAIMS SHORTER ROUTE.

Attorney Frederick L. Brown, for the Manufacturers' Railway, sought to bring out in examination of Marsh that the connection with the Alton & Southern sought by the Manufacturers' means a shorter route to a large portion of the west side industrial territory from the outer belt system serving the East St. Louis, Granite City & Alton district. The Alton & Southern is crossed by practically all the chief long and short line carriers serving East St. Louis, Marsh pointed out.

WRIGHT SUBMITS FIGURES.

Arthur E. Wright, president and general manager of the Manufacturers' Railway, testified his company served 315 permanent customers in St. Louis, compared with 221 served by the Terminal, and that it had approximately half as many public delivery tracks as the Terminal. It also exchanged a greater proportion of freight with East Side than West Side lines, he said, submitting figures covering several years. Wright's qualifications as an expert on traffic were challenged by Attorney Pierce, but the president of the Manufacturers stoutly maintained that he was a competent expert on terminal matters if not on trunk line transportation. Examiner Davis accepted this declaration and ordered Wright to finish his testimony.

William Baker, who is charged with the shooting, told the authorities that when driving a truck for the company operating the Webb coal mine he employed non-union workers, a crowd of union miners insulted him and he fired five times into the crowd.

SEEKS TO BAR ROAD FROM FREE BRIDGE

Terminal Attacks Manufacturers' Plea Before I. C. C. for Extension to City Span.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A determined attack was launched by Thomas M. Pierce, attorney for the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis, against the proposed extension of the trackage rights of the Manufacturers' Railway across the Free Bridge to East St. Louis, as soon as the hearing on the Manufacturers' application was opened today by Examiner H. C. Davis of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Pierce objected to the taking of testimony on the application, because the brief for the Manufacturers' railway had been filed under a section of the transportation act covering extension of physical facilities, when he said, in reality, the extension would be only one of service. He said the trackage rights, which the applicant line seeks between its own tracks and the southern approach to the Free Bridge, and between the eastern approach of the bridge and the Alton & Southern on the east side, would not "require the expenditure of a dollar" by the Manufacturers' to which counsel for that road agreed.

HORNSBY STANDS GOOD CHANCE TO BAT ABOVE 400 MARK FOURTH TIME

RAJAH NOW TIED WITH COBB AND BURKETT WITH A 400 AVERAGES

By ALAN J. GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Rogers Hornsby's big bat is busy knocking over the theory that individual playing prowess is cramped by the responsibilities and worries of managing a ball club.

If there is one factor more than any other responsible for the come-back of the Braves it is the terrific hitting of the new Boston manager who has been on his biggest rampage of the plate since he finished off a six-year run at the top of the National League batting heap three years ago.

Hornsby's bat, when it is in tune and coupled with the unquestionable magnetic force of his leadership, is by long odds the most potent individual factor any club in the National League possesses or any club in the American with the exception of the Yankees and Babe Ruth.

Handicapped in '26 by illness.

When Rogers last took over the leadership of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1926, his bat was out of tune, gone from its sharpness through the added burden of responsibility. He finished with a mark of .403. When he skidded down to .317 in 1928, the year the Cards won the pennant and world's championship, the slump was due more to illness and a strained back than to the burdens of management. The worries of captaining the Giants last year were negligible enough for the Rajah to bat his way up to .361.

This year, if he continues the .400 pace he has been hitting to date, Hornsby will be the first batsman in major league history to go over that mark four times. He shares now with Jesse Burkett and Ty Cobb the distinction of being the only batsman with three averages of .400 or better to their credit.

Must Be Reckoned With.

This season Hornsby has the handicap of a poor start by the Braves to overcome. Likewise he faces strong opposition at every hand. Perhaps the best he can hope for is to land the club in fifth place, but it will have to be reckoned with by any rival outfit, from now on, while Hornsby is setting the pace for such an array of sluggers as Sisler, Moore, Richardson, Bell and others.

Hornsby's lifetime average of .349 for the past 13 years surpasses anything on record in the National League. The late Adrian (Pop) Anson, over a 22-year stretch, turned in an average of .333 for the best previous mark.

A. Z. A. SQUAD WINS Y. M. H. A. TRACK MEET

The A. Z. A. Club won the Y. M. H. A.'s first annual track and field meet yesterday on the Junior High field. Second place went to the "Y" midgets. In the intermediate class the Thomas A. C. was first. Schumitsky, the "Y" Midgets made the best individual score in the senior division, getting 154 points, while Newman of the A. Z. A. accounted, 15. Eddie Hershkovitz of Thomas A. C. was high-point man of the meet, with 76 points, scored in the intermediate division.

LEBANON STAR GAINS VICTORY
IN NET TOURNY

By Davison Ober.

Play in the annual St. Louis District tennis tournament for juniors and boys reached the second round as the result of matches completed yesterday on the courts in Forest Park. Seventeen contests were decided in the junior singles, while six were played in the boys' singles. The doubles event was also started, one match in each division being played.

With the exception of two contests, all of the junior singles matches resulted in straight set victories. Randall Klein, the Lebanon (Ill.) star, was forced to three sets by Kenneth Menke, a local player. The score was 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. In the other three-set encounter, Bert Brouster won from Joe Sauvage of Alton, Ill., 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Junior Boehmer, present champion; Vernon Tietjen, William Bascom and Robert Semple, among the title favorites, drew byes and did not play. A number of second-round matches in the singles will be played today, with doubles contests also on the program.

Warren Davis proved himself to be a worthy contender for the boys' singles title by defeating William Sharp, 6-0, 6-0, in a second-round contest. Godfrey Hartnett, another title favorite, won his match from Dan Schlaefly, 6-3, 6-1.

In the only boys' doubles match, Flachart and Master defeated the Madison (Ill.) team of Studebaker and Studebaker, 1-6, 6-4.

Players still remaining in the first round bracket must report to Martin Teller before 1 o'clock today or defaults will be issued. The semifinalists in both the junior and boys' tournament will be eligible for the national junior and boys' championship to be played at Culver, Ind., during the week of Aug. 13. Winners of the St. Louis district events will receive medals from the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

JOHN EASY FOR ROGERS.

ONE of the angles indicating that baseball promoters are not members of the Dumbbell family is illustrated in Boston, where the management recently extended the bleacher seats into left field, quite a distance on what had been the field of play.

The Braves' Field already seated many more fans than has been required for the largest crowd the club has attracted in some time, and the move may have mystified the public in general.

The reason is plain. Home runs were wanted. Home runs are the vogues now. If our boys and the visitors can't enliven the afternoon with a home over the fence now and then the day has been a flop.

Hitting into the bleachers, under old conditions at the Braves' Field was about impossible. So they brought the bleachers into reach of the home run hitters.

Today Braves Field is a shining mark in left field for the boys who swing right-handed.

Saturday five home runs were made in one game. In 46 games, 34 homers were hit and Rogers Hornsby made 11 of them to lead his league.

The new Braves' bleachers may not be filled often but they have their value just the same.

Athletics vs. Scholarship.

GORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

RUSHED into the vindication

of the athletes vs. scholarship.

A survey recently made by the institution showed that the general scholastic average of the nonathletes for the semester's work and the examinations was 79.1 for the athletes, 79 per cent. This is nine per cent above the school's passing grade. The golf team averaged 82.6 per cent, the rifle shooters 82.5, the tennis team 82.2, the baseball squad 80, basketball 79.4, track 78.9, boxing 77.2 and football 77.1.

Thus the boxers and football men, who devote more time to their sports in practice probably than the other forms of recreation were only 2 per cent below the nonathletes but still were 7 per cent above the passing requirement.

Individual excellencies far above the average were noted among the athletes, just as variations among the nonathletes were found.

In proportion to their numbers, there were 2 per cent fewer failures among the athletes than among the nonathletes students.

Which ought to settle once and for all the educators' complaint that athletics detracts from education.

RAY KEECH WINNER

OF 100-MILE RACE

DETROIT, Mich., June 11.—Ray Keech of Philadelphia won the 100-mile dirt track automobile race here yesterday, negotiating the distance at an average speed of 77.83 miles per hour.

First Frame of Texas finished second and Howard Taylor of Flint, Mich., third. Lou Meyer of Los Angeles, winner of the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, failed to qualify.

VICTORY OF TORO BOOSTS REIGH COUNT'S STOCK AS 3-YEAR-OLD

HERTZ COLT IS NOW REGARDED AS LEADER FOR 1928 CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 11.—Reigh Count, the big red colt owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago, appeared a stronger contender than ever today for the 3-year-old national championship.

Two turf classics of Saturday served to boost Reigh Count stock. At Belmont, the red colt's most favorable Eastern rival, Victorian, was outstepped by Vito. Missstep, who has been Reigh Count's chief challenger in the Middle West, finished second to Toro in the running on the American Derby at Arlington Park.

Reigh Count defeated Toro and Missstep well as Missstep, in the Kentucky Derby, gaining a clear field thus far for the 3-year-old supremacy.

Toro's victory in the American Derby was impressive. He lugged for the first three-quarters of a mile, pushed into a tie at the mile and then sped down the stretch to win by five lengths over Missstep. Solace, owned by the Seagram stable of Montreal, finished third. The victory for his owner, Edward P. McLean, Washington and Cincinnati publisher, netted $22,175. Eddie Ambrose rode the winner.

The twentieth renewal of the American Derby also was a triumph for the event, which a quarter of a century ago was America's premier turf classic. Fifty thousand fans watched the race.

Glasgow Rangers Tied by Detroit

By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, June 11.—The Glasgow Rangers, Scottish soccer champions, were held to a 1 to 1 draw here yesterday by the Detroit All-Stars. Although displaying superior skill in spots, the visitors were hard pressed to obtain even a tie.

MEN WHO MANAGE SKYSCRAPERS TAKE UP CODE OF ETHICS

National Building Owners and Operators Declare Work Has Become a Real Profession.

Several hundred men who manage skyscrapers and other office structures and similar buildings throughout the country are in St.
Louis for the twenty-first annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. The gathering opened at Hotel Statler this morning and will continue till Friday with a long program of business sessions for the interchange of ideas and information, and of entertainment.

Emphasis is being laid on the importance of the profession these convention visitors represent. They say that their enterprises constitute an investment of nearly $7, 000,000,000 in real property in the central business districts of all large American cities. They have found that their job of financing and management is a specialized one, requiring training and skill, and they are considering establishment of ethical standards, as in other professions.

To Study St. Louis Buildings.

Office buildings and apartment houses of St. Louis will furnish an object lesson for the visitors, who will be taken for an inspection of various such structures tomorrow afternoon. There is a separate apartment house section in the association. The Building Owners' & Managers' Association of St.
Louis is the host for the convention.
Service committees and a central office staff at Chicago carry on the work of the national organization all year.

Louis O. Honig of St. Louis, convention chairman, opened the gathering today, and after an invocation and address of welcome, E.
Clarence Holmes of San Francisco, president of the association, delivered the annual report.

Urged to Work in Peace.

Holmes urged the membership to keep a close watch on expenditures of public funds for running the Government, asserting that increasing taxes and wasteful methods are placing a severe burden on business. He said, in part:

"Over one-quarter of the operation dollar is the price our buildings pay for public expenditures.
We should not be passively silent when unthinking voters and selfish politicians demand a larger slice.
We, as building managers, should be more than ever alert to the great waste going on, often so heedlessly, in the expenditure of public money. Our job is not confined to the walls of our buildings.
It would pay us well if we opened our windows to see what is happening outside. Our taxation problem is not the problem solely of the owners of property, but inasmuch as the business of the nation is housed in the buildings which we operate, a portion of every rent bill is tribute exacted from the commerce and industry of the United States by governmental extravagance and waste. This constitutes a terrific burden upon the business of the nation. Let us all fight for saner methods of government; for the introduction of real business principles in the extremely important business of running our cities and states. Crafty politicians, payrollers and boodlers should be driven out and supplanted by competent administrators."

C. F. Palmer of Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the association's constitutional commission, reported today on a plan to establish and maintain professional standards and to give better protection to the tremendous investment in office and other buildings represented. It is proposed to provide representation on the association's governing board for the numerous members in cities without local organizations.

PLANS NATION-WIDE POLL
ON 13-MONTH CALENDAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A nationwide inquiry to find out whether people would prefer 13 equal months in every year to 12 or uneven length is to be begun at once, George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., announces. He returned from abroad today.

Eastman is chairman of the national committee on calendar simplification for the United States, formed at the invitation of the League of Nations, which recommended similar action in other countries. The formation of the American committee was suggested to Secretary of State Kellogg in a letter from the League of Nations. As this country is not a member of the League Kellogg turned the matter over to Eastman, who has long been an advocate of calendar simplification. He saw no obstacle to the forming of an unofficial committee and getting the unofficial co-operation of Government departments, he said.
Clears Tangle Over Glenn Frank's Car.

MADISON, Wis., June 11.—The Attorney-General ruled Saturday that Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, is entitled to a car under his contract, and that its purchase need not be approved by the Governor. When the bill was presented to the Secretary of State originally he declined to handle it in the belief that it must be approved by the Governor.

POLICEMAN TO GET DRUNK

A policeman does not come under the Missouri statute making it a misdemeanor for a public official to be intoxicated when in the performance of official duty, Judge Butler ruled today in Court of Criminal Correction. Attorney General Gentry had delivered an opinion to the contrary to Prosecuting Attorney Schmitz, then upon prosecution of Walter G.

Holmes of 4351 Loughborough avenue, who had been a probationary policeman, was instituted.

Holmes, police executives alleged, was found intoxicated on duty at Tower Grove and Manchester avenues April 22. His attorney defended him on the ground that a policeman was not amenable to this law. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Graves agreed, but said he had to prosecute it in view of the Attorney-General's opinion. The State will appeal as the police regard this as a test case. Punishment on conviction may range from a $50 fine to six months in jail. Holmes was dropped from the force on April 22.

PLANE CARRIER SHOWS SPEED
Lexington Sets Record at 29.5
Knots an Hour.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The airplane carrier Lexington reported to the Navy Department today that she had set a new record for speed, going 700 knots between noon Saturday and noon yesterday, averaging 29.2 knots (about 33 miles) an hour.

Claudel Gets Delaware U. Degree.
NEWARK, Del., June 11.—Paul Claudel, the French Ambassador, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from the University of Delaware at the annual commencement today. The Ambassador made the address to the graduating class. Dr. Charles Lee Reese, vice president of the Du Pont Co., received the degree of Doctor of Science.

~ $286,680.91 in interest was credited to Mercantile Savings Depositors on June 1st, the semi-annual interest date.
Most of it will remain on deposit in their accounts and draw interest next December.
This is the compounding process, working summer and winter for Mercantile savers.

quaint places. Our patrons may scatter in vacation time, but the bond between them and their bank remains. Some, while they're playing, are paying with Travelers' Checks bought from us.

~ The Safe Deposit Department is busy, moving into its storage vaults the chests of silver, fine linen, laces and antiques that thoughtful owners hesitate to leave in closed houses during vacation time.

~ Early summer means acceleration in the Trust Department, for every year before starting an extended trip more people see the wisdom of leaving their wills in the hands of "The Safe Executor." They realize it is better a year too early than a second too late in attending to this important detail.

~ Business must be financed and refinanced regardless of the calendar and thermometer. Our Bond Department does this efficiently at all seasons.

~ The Real Estate Department, which is a real estate agency backed by the responsibility of a Trust Company, passes the spring peak and continues to buy, sell, rent and manage the property of clients.

22 KILLED WHEN TRAIN JUMPS RAILS AT CURVE

Boller of Engine of German Express Explodes, Scalding Occupants of First Coach.

By the Associated Press.

NUREMBERG, Germany, June 11.—Twenty-two persons were killed when the Munich-Frankfurt Express plunged down an embankment near Siegelsdorf yesterday.

The train was rounding a sharp curve at 50 miles an hour when it left the rails. The engine plunged down the embankment and the boiler burst. The first coach fell on the locomotive and most of its occupants were scalded to death. Fourteen persons were killed outright and eight of those injured died later.

Most of the uninjured passengers, panic stricken, fled without attempting to aid those who were hurt. They finally were cared for by persons who came from nearby towns to the scene of the disaster.

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acid. But don't use cranberry juice. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate.

COURTHOUSE VIEW OVER 12-MILE RADIUS

St. Louis and Environs Spread Below Observer, 373 Feet Aloft.

Next to an airplane, there is no better place for an observer to see St. Louis and its environs than from the little platform at the apex of the new Civil Courthouse. A Post-Dispatch reporter, escorted there on a recent exceptionally clear day by the superintendents of construction, could see a great circle of the metropolitan area, fully 25 to 30 miles in diameter, and structures near the rim of this Greater St. Louis could be identified.

The platform is 373 feet above the street. Griffins of aluminum which are to surmount it will raise the height of 335 feet. There will be scuttles in the backs of these figures from which venturesome persons, if granted permission, may look about. The highest point to which the public ordinarily will be admitted when the courthouse is opened next year will be the mezzanine of the floor set aside for the St. Louis Law Library, with windows 265 feet above the streets, but the view there is almost as good.

Promenade Being Built.

A public promenade is being constructed around the base of the colonnade of the upper part of the courthouse, 224 feet high. Access to this will be through the room designed as the lounge for Judges of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, who may exercise some restriction of entry. It is true that the searchlight platform on top of the neighboring Telephone Building is 275 feet high, but the view there is obscured in one direction by a chimney.

From the top of the courthouse comes atmosphere permitted Chain of Rocks to be seen on the north, backed by the chimneys, apparently, of Roxana, Ill., near the mouth of the Missouri River; Jefferson Barracks on the south and Mississippi River bluffs far beyond it; the vicinity of Webster Groves on the west, with hills extending almost to the Meramec; and the Illinois bluffs beyond East St. Louis on the east.

Spotted by the big General Motors Building at Union Boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue, the observer gets the impression that it is a father away than may Vandeventer and East Lafayette Park looks to be just beyond the fascinating maze of railroad tracks in Mill Creek Valley.

Cathedral Scene Near.

Kenrick Seminary, south of Webster Groves, is well below the horizon. The glistening green dome of the St. Louis Cathedral appears, from this illusory vantage point, to be only a stone's throw away, with the Art Museum nestled in the greenery of Forest Park just beyond. Outside of the downtown district, church spires and occasional apartment houses are the local landmarks. The white chimney of cement factory at Continental Looms, up a short stretch of the pavement on Lemay Ferry road, due east of that plant, is visible.

The city and suburbs spread out in queer geometrical patterns. The meanderings of the Mississippi around St. Louis may be traced with a single turn of the head, making clear the reason. Grand boulevard, Kingshighway and other "parallel" thoroughfares may lead into Broadway. The widening of Olive street looks like a big scar. Over the Hilltop, beyond the smoking chimneys of the Cahokia electric plant, there is a surprising greenness, where the farm lands nearest the city begin. To the east and northeast, however, there is smoke and bustle of much industry visible, with Horseshoe Lake shining like a mirror in a shipping room.

Close at hand, there is much interest in the view of familiar downtown scenes from a new and very angle. The future appearance of Memphis may be envisioned, partly with the aid of such new adjacent structures as the Municipal Service Building, Police Headquarters, the Coroner's Court and the Missouri Pacific Building.

From the low library mezzanine, where the public may see the city, the picture of the community is almost as good, and the distance to the enclosing horizon is not greatly reduced. For instance, Chain of Rocks and Jefferson Barracks stand out from there. And from the twelfth floor promenade the panorama is sufficiently thrilling.

COST OF EDUCATING PUPILS
IN PUBLIC SCHOOL DOUBLED

Price Today Is $102 a Year Against $58 in 1913, Survey Shows.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The price of educating a public school pupil has more than doubled in the last 15 years, figures compiled by the Federal Bureau of Education show. In 1913 the cost was $43.51. The present cost is $102.51. Expenditures for public school buildings have almost doubled since 1920, the peak being reached in 1925 when $425,000,000 was spent for new buildings. In 1926, however, the annual expenditure for public school buildings decreased $22,000,000, indicating the Bureau said, that construction had overtaken the shortage caused by the World War.

The Bureau attributed the increase in school expenditures to the decreased purchasing power of the dollar and the general improved school facilities.

PART THREE.

ST. LOUIS, MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1928.

The Record of Circuit Attorney Sidener's Failures as Public Prosecutor

Review of Three Conspicuous Cases—Rutherford and Motlow Murders, Ferguson-McKinney Crash

Persistent Criticisms and Charges of Corruption Grew Out of These Prosecutions—Once Indicted on Charge of Agreeing to Accept a Bribe.

HE filing for candidates for public office having closed last Friday night, Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener finds himself opposed by four candidates for the Republican nomination for Circuit Attorney, and with strong organization support from the practical politicians in the City Committee, he regards the situation as "made to order for him, as he expects the opposing vote within his party to be cast among his four rivals."

At one time there was talk of Republican party leaders bringing a strong candidate against him for Circuit Attorney, the most prominent office in the city related to the public's defense against crime. But a subsequent change of front resulted in their seeming willingness to let the nomination go to Sidener, for a third time, by default.

If Sidener wins the nomination in the primary Aug. 7, he will be his opponent at the November election one of the three Democratic candidates—former Circuit Judge Franklin Miller, Tom Rowe and Joseph F. Dickmann.

His persistent criticisms and charges of corruption and indecency launched at Circuit Attorney Sidener during his last term were based upon three convictions by his office in enforcing the law. These may be designated as the Motlow case, the Ferguson-McKinney case and the Rutherford case.

The Motlow case was a major importance attended by wide publicity and in each instance the Circuit Attorney's office failed ignominiously to obtain conviction.

Defeat of justice in these prosecutions was followed by spontaneous outbursts of popular indignation. In the Rutherford case, characterized by the notorious marriage of the Rutherford's, public opinion reached such a state that the Chamber of Commerce and a grand jury investigated by the Attorney-General.

The Motlow case. This is what happened in the Motlow case:

On March 18, 1924, Lem Motlow, a wealthy distiller of Lynchburg, Tenn., got drunk and boarded a Pullman of a Louisville & Nashville train at Union Station to his home after a visit here, became enraged at some insults offered by his revolver in the hands of Wallace, a Negro porter. He pictured what would happen if Wallace should win a civil suit and should take Motlow's ancestral home away from him. He told Motlow's friends in the Merchants' Exchange he had come to his help, and dwelt on the testimony given by the Governor of Tennessee, Austin Peay, and others, to Motlow's character.

Patrick H. Cullen of St. Louis developed further the appeal to race prejudice. He pictured the porter, "all swelled up" with the $50,000 damage money he sought, and represented other witnesses for the State as going to him and begging a share of the money. Motlow drew a re-enactment of the expressed intention of shooting Wallace. He was indicted on two counts. One charged him with embezzlement on the ground that he had taken $115,000 in cash from his company and substituted his I. O. U. The other indictment covered several counts all charging that Ferguson had made false financial statements to obtain credit from local and Eastern financial institutions, a fraud evidently established by the company's own books and the admissions of clerks having full knowledge.

William O. Reeder was the lawyer selected to advise with Sidener on the prosecution of Ferguson. After numerous conferences Reeder quietly withdrew from the case. Sidener elected to put Ferguson to trial on the embezzlement charge. Ferguson was defended by Edward Forstier.

Brought to trial in April of 1926, Ferguson was freed on an instructed verdict of acquittal given by Circuit Judge George E. Mix.

Behind-the-Scenes Story.

Bankers who declined to be quoted gave the press the behind-the-scenes story of the Ferguson-McKinney case. Authoritative spokesmen said that Reeder had differed radically with Sidener on the tactics of the prosecution. It was the opinion of all the able legal advisors summoned by the bankers' committee that Sidener had no case at all against Ferguson. Another defense lawyer declared that the porter, and not Motlow, should be tried for the murder and still another called the porter "a human orang-outang."

Sidener's Plea in Case.

Circuit Attorney Sidener said in his plea to the jury that Motlow was "angry and drunk" at the time of the shooting, and that cold blood and malice aforethought had been shown in sufficient degree to constitute a double murder.

"This is not a case of North and South, or of white and black," Sidener had almost no chance of making a first degree murder case against Motlow and had to prove that he set out to provoke Motlow's chance of being lesser crime. Sidener's argument in the beginning he would ask for the death penalty placed the prosecution in a difficult dilemma.

When the case was at an immediate disadvantage, Sidener had nothing to offer but to make a first degree murder case against Motlow and to prove that he set out to provoke Motlow's chance of being lesser crime. Sidener's argument in the beginning he would ask for the death penalty placed the prosecution in a difficult dilemma.

Members of the jury which acquitted Motlow after a long and tedious discussion of the case, said they believed the defense story. The defense, however, had to admit that Motlow had not been killed by the unarmed porter. Motlow had paid Mrs. Pullin $10,000, and this fact was known to the jury, which by its verdict permitted Motlow to settle the matter by this payment, and the probably larger amount he had to pay his lawyers.

Despairing of justice under the Sidener regime, the bankers' committee appealed to the Federal officials. Ferguson and Alfred Bagot, secretary of the defunct company, were indicted for using the mails to defraud in sending the false financial statements through the mails.

Government's Difficulties.

This charge was regarded as an exceedingly difficult one to make under the Federal statute. It was necessary that the Government prove a scheme to defraud enforcement in St. Louis. There was palpable evidence of that there were plenty of witnesses to the crime.

Confronted with this evidence, Sidener then laid the blame on Sammy Bender, an attorney.

"Sammy was special prosecutor and I depended upon him to get the witnesses to court," Sidener explained.

Here it will be observed that he had accepted a special prosecutor, whereas in the Ferguson-Bagot cases he had effectively disposed of the one provided for him.

The Real Inside Story.

Post-Dispatch reporters, with this "special prosecutor" crew, soon got down to the real inside story of the Rutherford murder case settlement. It was shown that Bender represented Mrs. Tillie Tucker, indigent mother of the slain youth, who had a not unnatural desire to get some monetary compensation for her great loss from Rutherford's family. John Rutherford, brother of the slayer, said he had paid $1,500 to "St. Louis lawyers."

The manipulations of the Rutherford case in detail disclosed that the Rutherford's had refused to pay Mrs. Tucker unless William Rutherford would give a firm St. Louis friend of the Rutherford's trial to find a Judge who would accept the recommendation for the fine. The proposal was first put up to Circuit Judge Frey. He refused to do it.

Assisting in the dickering were Verne R. C. Lacy and W. W. Henderson, attorneys retained by the Rutherford's. A change of venue was taken from Judge Frey to Judge Mix. Meanwhile, Lacy and Henderson worked on the Circuit Attorney. Bender, playing the dual role of special prosecutor and damage suit lawyer, was out to get a money settlement for his client and a fee for himself.

Sidener has spent much of his time "pow-wow-ing" in an inner office with political chieftains both great and small, and while Geist was with him, the chief clerk greeted all who came on business. "You'll have to see Geist" was an oft-repeated dictum at the Municipal Courts building.

Much of the criticism Sidener and many of the insinuations that have surrounded his tenure in the Circuit Attorney's office were due to his long association with William Geist. Although ostensibly a chief clerk at $200 a month, Geist for years was regarded in police and court circles as the real power and influence with the Circuit Attorney. Bender, playing the dual role of special prosecutor and damage suit lawyer, was out to get a money settlement for his client and a fee for himself.

Indictment of Sidener.

The facts learned by the Post-Dispatch aroused public feeling to an unusual heat. Attorney-General Gentry came to St. Louis and conducted inquiries with two grand juries.

Sidener was indicted for conspiracy to defraud, compounding a felony and agreeing to accept a bribe from John Rutherford. Bender was indicted for conspiracy to defraud and compounding a felony. The Rutherford law firm, Lacy and Henderson, were charged with conspiracy to defraud Justice with improper conduct. Geist maintained from the first that he was not fired but resigned. He now expresses himself as Sidener's bitterest enemy.

Following the second of the disclosures, Sidener announced his candidacy last Thursday. Sidener at the same time ordered a grand jury investigation of the Russo matter, and directed Assistant Circuit Attorney Maroney to conduct the inquiry, relieving him of other duties.

Arthur J. Freund is 27 years old, and came here from Kentucky, after having taken a college course in the University of Kentucky. He worked his way there and in the St. Louis University Law School, and after his graduation from the local school in 1921, was admitted to the bar. He was a solo man and soon became a member of the board of his office. He was elected to the bar in 1922.

He was offered $100,000 to defend Italian gangsters charged with murder. The other disclosure was that William Russo, fruit merchant, had told him of having to pay $15,700 to a "square deal" in the Circuit Attorney's office, in the matter of his defense of the Russo gangsters.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Protests Against Proposed Narrow Street Between Spring and Grand.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PROPERTY owners near Grand and Olive will doubtless be surprised to learn that the city officials have revived the plan for the making of a narrow street between Grand and Spring and that this matter comes up for a hearing next Tuesday morning before the Board of Public Service. Since the proposal suggested by Mr. Brooks about three years ago several new buildings have been erected in the path of the proposed street and real estate values on Lindell, Olive, Washington and Delmar have more than doubled.

Property owners would like to know why the city officials insist on the narrow street being opened in the middle of the block when Spring avenue can be widened into a 100-foot boulevard at one-half the cost? We are told that the purpose of the new street is the relief of traffic congestion on Grand, but the making of this narrow street will cost more than the making of Spring avenue into a 100-foot boulevard, and, unless the wide street, will give greater relief. A wide street will also furnish a place for parking near the Grand boulevard theaters and serve as a fire-spreading prevention zone.

Again I ask why a narrow expensive street when we can have a great boulevard at no extra cost to the taxpayer?

A Page Line Patron Protests.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Public Service Co. says it wants to relieve Grand boulevard of traffic congestion. The only time the street can pile up there is just after a ball game. Is this sufficient reason for forcing Page line patrons from west of Taylor to allow 10 or 15 minutes more to get downtown?

It is necessary to put the Hodamont cars on Washington, why not take the Park and Compton off, running them north over Eighteenth to Franklin, and let the heavily patronized Page line alone? Why take the Page line away from the Grand boulevard theater district?

If the proposed change is made, it will mean a greatly increased demand for bus service from west of Taylor, and the Public Service Co. will find its Page line patronage dwindling down to practically nothing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WE wish to compliment you on the editorials in reference to the hearings before the Federal Trade Commission, particularly "A Crime Against Youth" which we had reprinted in our local paper. We also wish to compliment your cartoonist on the "Enlightening System."

We also wish to compliment you on the editorials relative to the veto of the recent farm legislation and the cartoon, "The Pen is Mightier Than the Pitchfork."

The Absence of Musical Instruction at Washington University.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AT the recent commencement exercises of Washington University, attention was called to the bequests and donations to that institution last year which totaled $685,000. In most cases, specific directions were given as to where this money should go. The astonishing thing is that not one of the donors thought of making a gift to the University for the purpose of musical education. In our country over seven hundred million dollars per annum is spent on music. It is an essential in our life. And yet, in our great University there is no Department of Music. An earnest student can find instructors there in practically every other branch of learning. Those who wish University credits in musical study must go to the Missouri State University, or to Illinois, Kansas, or Ohio State University.

Last season we witnessed a tremendous amount of enthusiasm over our Symphony Orchestra. A number of our citizens subscribed liberally to the guarantee fund for its support. At present there is no person or group giving anything to establish a musical department at the Washington University. And those of us in the musical profession are convinced that from the standpoint of actual benefit to the community, this is a more pressing need than the orchestra, important as it is. With the coming of our new municipal auditorium, and with the remembrance of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, it is to be hoped that some good citizens on grounds of citizens will add to these two great local musical assets by establishing a worthy Department of Music in Washington University, which will not only be a credit to our city but to the entire Central West.

THE GRAND JURY AND CRIME.

Few opportunities for public service equal those which present themselves to the present St. Louis grand jury. The prevalence of outlawry in the city is almost unprecedented. The community is terrorized by gangs, and justice is itself suffering from partial paralysis because of public apathy. The grand jury is under special instructions in two very important respects:

1. To investigate bombing. The practice of bombing new structures built in part by nonunion labor has been permitted to become almost a convention. The Post-Dispatch has several times urged organized labor for its own self-respect to co-operate with the community in ridding the working forces of the city of the dastards who would blow women and children into eternity and terrorize whole residence sections for a few paltry dollars, and the Central Trades and Labor Assembly has by resolution condemned it. There has not, however, been that emphatic protest which we would have liked to have heard organized labor make.

The quarrels between employer and employee are as old as civilization, and they have at times assumed great bitterness and ferocity; but we cannot recall another time when human life was held so cheaply by either side as it is by the unconscionable wretches who would blow up whole families because one of the trades employed in the construction was unorganized. The grand jury can get to the bottom of these outrages. It can find out who these men are, and deliver them to justice. It is absurd that such a war should rage in the midst of the city and no one should be able to discover the bombers. Only protection of the most shameless sort could conceal them.

2. The grand jury is also instructed to investigate the stories that the underworld is paying the Circuit Attorney's office to take care of it. The Russo story may be false, but after the Motlow and the Rutherford cases the community is entitled to a merciless investigation of the whole machinery of justice in St. Louis. Even if indictments are impossible, the grand jury has a precedent from the old double days for fully informing the community of the present status of justice in the city. If one can murder a bobby, as Rutherford did, and escape with a $500 fine; or if one can kill a Pullman conductor, as Motlow did, and go Scott free, the morale of justice hereabouts must be low. How low is it? The grand jury should tell us. It enjoys a power and prerogative not enjoyed by any other agency of the law. Its personnel is such as to justify the expectation that it will be governed by a high sense of public duty nor fear to do that duty well.

The city is at a crisis. It will either stand by law and purge the processes of justice of every alliance with crime, or it will surrender itself to outlawry and become an unfit place in which to live. The grand jury alone can determine which course we are to take. It can definitely place St. Louis upon the side of public decency. It can give the approaching election of a Circuit Attorney, and the election of new Judges to the local bench, a significance which nobody can mistake. The Post-Dispatch hopes to see it assume this leadership.

OFFICIAL LAWLESSNESS.

In raiding the flat at 3345A Finney avenue without a warrant the police were guilty of gross official lawlessness. It is not a justification of what they did that they applied for a warrant news of it would have beaten the police to the flat. That is another matter deserving attention in itself. Captain Tabb admits that no case can be made in court against law violators taken in the raid. There was no doubt about the law violation, but the Supreme Court of the United States has said emphatically that raiding without warrant cannot be tolerated.

This being so, what do the police gain by making such a raid? They can, it is true, carry off the liquor found on the place; but there is no court into which this liquor can be taken as evidence. The seizure is therefore futile. What is worse, it was lawless. Captain Tabb says the police have to overstep the law to catch people of the sort occupying this flat, but in the orgy of lawlessness to which we have descended are the police also to disregard the law?

They cannot be permitted to do so. The flat on Finney avenue was notoriously a blind tiger. The police could have got a warrant to raid it. If they could not catch the law violators in this way, as Captain Tabb says, then there is lawlessness in the first instance which is much more serious than violating the liquor law.

THE CAPTURE OF PEKIN.

The historic capital of China, wrested without the firing of a shot, from the once dreaded war lord, Chang Tso-lin, is in the hands of the Nationalists. Chang marched his troops quietly out of Pekin's back door as the Nationalists took possession at the front. The capture of Pekin has been for several years one of the keenest ambitions of the Nationalists, and it was entirely unexpected that Chang, supposedly an able warrior, would relinquish it without a determined struggle. One can only guess at his reasons. Perhaps the Nationalists were too strong. Perhaps Chang, long subservient to Japanese influence, got into this from Tokio to retire to the north.

It is a complex game that is being played in the Far East, with many wheels within wheels. Aside from the civil war being waged by the Nationalists against Chang Tso-lin, there is the question of Japanese strategy and the varied interests of the great Western Powers. There is also Russia, and the presence within Nationalistic ranks of many factions, from the deep red of the Cantonese to the moderate blue of the Nationalists' generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek. Again, among the Nationalists is that unreliable chieftain, Feng Yu-hsiang, the so-called Christian general. It is truly a Chinese puzzle.

However, we may blur these details to point out that a great democratic and unifying movement is in progress, and that this movement has been appreciably advanced by the capture of Pekin. That will give prestige and influence to the Nationalists that they never could have possessed while the ancient city was in the hands of such an enemy of the new order as Chang. The Nationalistic movement is headed by Chinese who have cut themselves free of the prejudices, taboos and superstitions of old China. They have borrowed their ideas from America and Europe, and they are trying to apply to China the governmental ideas of the Occident.

The problem of the Nationalists, therefore, is only partly a military one. It involves a gigantic social upheaval in which such events as the capture of Pekin is only a contributing force. It is one thing to gain physical control of the Chinese government; it is another to teach the masses of Chinese to regard themselves as entering a new and modern era. A revolution in the completest sense is in progress in the Orient, a revolution comparable to the one which transformed Japan from a hermit nation into a modern one. Is China capable of such transformation? Can it quit brooding over ancestral tombs to take its place among the great nations of the earth?

THE COUNTY'S CLEANSING.

Judge Mulloy has done the right thing, the necessary thing and the expected thing in appointing a private citizen to select the special grand jury which is scheduled to commence on Tuesday an investigation of existing conditions in St. Louis County.

He has done the right thing because, as explained in the Court order, neither of those officials is qualified, in the Judge's opinion, "to draw, select or summon said grand jury."

He has done the necessary thing because, had either of those officials performed this duty, public confidence would be wanting in the jury's deliberations and findings.

He has done the expected thing because of the courage and straight-from-the-shoulder candor with which he has discussed county conditions and the ill repute in which law-enforcement officialdom of the county is held.

And in nominating Volney H. Dunham to act as "elisor" in this emergency, where the constituted officers are held unqualified, Judge Mulloy has chosen a man of admirable character, untainted by political entanglements, with a record of citizenship which assures the people of St. Louis as to the integrity and capacity of the grand jury.

Two of the witnesses whom this grand jury will examine are Sheriff Wilmus and Coroner Bopp. The grand jury will want to know the mysterious source of the Sheriff's extra-official $30,000 income. It will want to know whether Mr. Bopp is Coroner Bopp or Undertaker Bopp, or whether he has merged his official prerogatives and private interests to his unlawful or, at least, unethical profit. It will want to examine the office of Constable and the qualifications and activities of the Deputy Constables, many of whom are under public suspicion of collusion with law-breakers and of partnership in criminal enterprise.

It will, in a word, want to go thoroughly and fearlessly into the "existing conditions" which have made St. Louis County the grand headquarters of gangsterism and a seething sector of no law's land. Certainly that is the kind of grand jury the law-abiding people of St. Louis County want. Judge Mulloy has utilized the authority of law to give St. Louis County that kind of grand jury.

IS THE ENGLISH DERBY CRUEL?

John L. Baldwin, Post-Dispatch London correspondent, thinks it is cruel to run race horses over the English Derby course at Epsom Downs. He describes the race as starting at the foot of a "steep" hill, up which the horses must climb for half a mile before they reach level. It seemed to him that when they have negotiated the hill they must be winded and incapable of further effort.

We do not happen to know the degree of grade encountered by horses at Epsom Downs, but that it must be something less than steep is certainly indicated by figures. The Derby course is a mile and a half long, and the record time for the race is 2:34.2. The American track at Latonia, Ky., like all American tracks, is level. Over that track Handy Mandy, a filly, ran the fastest mile and a half in American turf history. Her time was 2:28.3. Ordinary time over a level course would be 2:30 or worse. Thus, between record time for the English Derby and the best American time there is only six seconds difference. Part of this difference, too, must be accounted for by the sharp turn at Tattington Corner at Epsom Downs. If there were a truly steep hill on the course the time would certainly be much slower than it is.

Aside from this, however, horses are bred and trained to do what the Epsom Downs course requires of them, just as in the early days of American racing horses were bred to go four miles. It is only cruel to make a horse do what he has not been bred to do, as, for example, to send a 2-year-old five and one-half, running sprinter over a mile-and-a-half course. Mr. Baldwin's sympathy is commendable, but misplaced. What emotions would he experience, one wonders, at the sight of Mr. Pyle's bunyan derby?

From indications, it will be a real Keystone delegation at Kansas City.

The world is about to witness the most thrilling drama in the cold, white annals of the North. The disabled ship and its imprisoned crew drifting helplessly on polar ice through incredible seas of desolation, will be ministered to by aerial missionaries bearing the gifts of material sustenance and, more fortifying still, the spiritual assurance of renewed contact with humanity. The sheer splendor of it holds the imagination in thrall. Compared with it the concerns of the day's work, the solemn affairs of states, the high deliberations or frenzied plottings of political leaders seem commonplace and almost tawdry.

The Galleys of Caligula

Gorgeous Floating Palaces of the Roman Emperor Have Lain at the Bottom of Lake Nemi, Near Rome, for Nearly Two Thousand Years; They Are Now to Be Recovered by Draining the Lake; Archeologists Are Looking Forward to This Event With the Anticipation of Finding Treasures of Antiquity in Profusion.

A. BEAUMONT, in the London Daily Telegraph.

Reprinted From the Living Age.

REPARATIONS are for recovering the famous Roman galleys in Lake Nemi, near Rome, which were sunk after the death of Emperor Caligula, more than eighteen hundred years ago, and it is hoped to reclaim also their luxurious and artistic decorations, and perhaps some of the valuable treasures they contained. At any rate, it will be a great day for Rome, for archaeology, and for Roman scholars all over the world.

The galleys were nearly as large as a modern seagoing ship, their length being some 200 feet and their beam over 60 feet. We shall see, perhaps, the cubiculum of Emperor Caligula reclined, the bronze thermos in which incense was burned before him the statues and statuettes of the various gods and goddesses which he worshipped in a costly little shrine next to his reclining, the gilt lettuces on which he and his courtiers were carried about on the deck, the thermae, or bathrooms, if such there were in his floating palaces, and possibly some pergamenae, decrees, and imperial documents, and, who knows, some long-lost books of Livy or verses of Horace or Virgil.

Many attempts were made in the past to raise the ships or recover them in whole or in part. Cardinal Prospero Colonna, who owned the castles of Nemi and Genzano, in the middle of the fifteenth century, instructed his architect and engineer, Battista Alberti, to try to raise the ships. Iron cables and hooks were fastened to the hulls, but they only damaged the hulls, and Alberti gave up the attempt.

When it was evident that they were in danger of sinking some attempt was probably made to save them and drag them to the shore, but they keeled over and went to the bottom. It is quite possible that little or no depreciation was committed previous to their sinking, as the objects recovered in 1895 were in a perfect state of preservation and no signs of willful destruction have yet been detected.

One of the ships is about 210 feet long and 73 feet broad, the other about 132 feet long and 68 feet broad. The smaller ship, which had been the shore, is lying in about forty-five feet of water. The larger is at a depth of about seventy-five feet, with the bottom of the lake descending very rapidly. Mussolini is expected to be present when the work of pumping the water begins. The operation of draining the lake to the required depth will take three or four years.

It will be a novel spectacle indeed to see the pumps at work and the water sent through a mysterious tunnel made by the Romans to the plain of the Roman Campagna more than a mile away. It is estimated that the volume of water to be removed is about 35,000,000 cubic tons, but as the springs and sources of supply will doubtless continue to pour in fresh volumes of water, 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 tons may have to be pumped out before the necessary level is reached.

Melancholy Figure of W. R. Hearst

W. R. HEARST. An American Phenomenon. By John K. Winkler (Grosset & Schuster.)

ANOTHER toss the name of Hearst into any group. The effect is as though you'd flung a flaming fagot. Half the company flies like rabbits, the others run forward to stamp out the fire. Hearst is possibly the most hated, as most feared, the least known man of prominence in America."

What does John K. Winkler pave the way for an absorbing story, a history it is true, and perhaps not so critical as might be desired; certainly not a definitive biography, but a chronicle of exciting and vivid interest, whether you regard Hearst as a great man, as Winkler seems to do, or as something considerably less.

Oliver Herford, the caricaturist and wit, replied, when asked to contribute to Hearst's publications virtually his own figure: "I will virtually enter in which I will willingly join William Randolph Hearst is self-destruction."

He was the son of a man with $10,000,000. William Randolph Hearst at length reached Harvard and after three years was fired. He thought Joseph Pulitzer was putting out the brightest newspaper in New York at that time and he thought that newspaper work was a pretty good line for a youngster with no specialized talent, so after a perfunctory study of the game, from the outside looking in, as a working reporter or desk man, he induced his father to give him the tottering old San Francisco Examiner. Into that this young man sank $500,000 before it began to make money—but it did make, and it continues to make money to this day.

He next invaded the New York field office for talent. He spent $10,000 of his mother's $7,500,000, and more, "matching dollars with Hitler"—and he made the Journal prosperous. Now he owns a ring of papers, news services, feature syndicates and magazines. His slightest cerebration promptly finds its way into four such headlines all over the country. He talks to millions.

Winkler recites, somewhat naively, that Hearst was the original back-to-Jefferson Democrat of yesterday politics; he was the original muckraker; he was 20 years ahead of his time with social reform; that he just about made a Spanish-American War; that he was almost in effigy in 1901; that he was not unlike that of Cincinnati forsaking his plow.

H. T. MEEK.

"I hung up the dish pan with a bang and said aloud and fiercely: 'Now I will write a novel!'" proclaims a new author, Lucy Poate Stebbins, who, as will be noted with satisfaction, is properly equipped with three names. Her lady further remarks that her act was not unlike that of Cincinnati forsaking his plow.

DR. F. H. AUFDERHEIDE, VETERAN PASTOR, DIES

Funeral of Man Who Organized Two Churches to Be Held Tomorrow.

Many former parishioners and former patients of the Rev. Frederick H. Aufderheide, M. D., veteran Presbyterian minister and physician, viewed his body today at an undertaking parlor at 2117 East Grand boulevard. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at North Presbyterian Church, St. Louis and Warne avenues.

Dr. Aufderheide, who was 87 years old, died Saturday of the infirmities of age. He entered the ministry in St. Louis more than 60 years ago, after a theological course in a Kentucky seminary.

He organized the East Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church, and when the small new congregation was unable to pay him, he supported himself by teaching in the public schools. He later served without pay at Walnut Park Church, which he also organized.

To enable him to serve the needs of the people, the minister took a second course.

And, apparently unabashed, the man never is abashed—within the past year he foisted on the public a series of "documents" purporting to show that Japan and the Calles Government of Mexico were plotting against the United States. When a United States Senate investigation branded these papers as clumsy fakes which had been published on Hearst's order without any inquiry whatever as to their authenticity, Hearst blandly admitted the charges but went on to declare that even if the letters were forgeries "the logic of events" set forth were facts indeed.

Three children survive the minister, Dr. Otto F. Aufderheide and Mrs. Henry Heilett of St. Louis, and Alvin C. Aufderheide of Toronto, Ont.

LOUISE GROODY AT ST. LOUIS

Better Than Average Show: Movie Is "No Other Woman."

Louise Groody, singing and dancing star of "No, No, Nanette" and, more lately, "Hit the Deck," is the headliner of a one-and-a-half-hour show at the St. Louis Theater this week. With her appears Edward Alton, also of "Hit the Deck," who is an eccentric stepper. "Who Done It?" a sketch presented by Miss Nordstrom and three men, is a syncopated travesty on the mystery melodrama. The standard acts of Tilyou and Rogers, Dorothy and Rosetta Ryan, harmony singers, and Joe Mendi, the educational chimpanzee, round out the show. Julius K. Johnson at the pipe organ offers "Love Songs, Then and Now," with a violin interpolation by Meyer Friedman, director of the house orchestra.

Dolores del Rio completely wears out the tragic muse she has been affecting lately in "No Other Woman," the motion picture this week. Dolores is a charmingly亭亭立立的 girl, but the picture is dreary.

The Friday night performance was called off at 9 o'clock because of a heat wave. Clear weather prevailed Saturday night and the last despite the fact that both of the nights were extremely cool, audience of more than 6000 gathered.

The second week of the season begins tonight with Franz Lehár's "The Merry Widow."

The piece has been presented twice previously at the Municipal Theater and each time stood out as the banner attraction of the year. Several thousand tickets have been purchased for visiting delegates to conventions that are to be held here during the week. Three hundred and fifty members of the Industrial Advertisers' Association will attend tonight's performance, 1000 members of the Building Owners and Managers Association and 100 delegates of the meeting of the Automotive Engine Builders' Association have tickets, for tomorrow night and several smaller groups are booked for the other presentations of the week.

The Garden Theater, out on its second week tonight with the musical comedy, "Queen High."

The Rev. William Hermann, for 12 years pastor of the Emmanuel Evangelical Church of Ferguson, yesterday announced his resignation and retirement from the pulpit.

He has been a clergyman for 50 years.

GOING SLUMMING.

WHILE for the most part, it's hard to believe, "Drag Net," at the Ambassador, is one of the very best of the great crop of underworld dramas which have clogged up the screens this season, George Bancroft, our leading exponent of the pistol shot dramas, turns the tables on the crooks this time by appearing in the role of a hard-boiled police captain and the way in which he finally overcomes the bad men—and women—of his town makes a thrilling and entertaining drama. Evelyn Brent is one of the girls who needed reforming badly and along about the seventh reel Bancroft makes a Christian out of her. She too, is excellent in her role and if you can stand the flashes of the machine guns and automatics and are willing to accept the logic of the leaders of gangsters live in palatial apartments which are hidden behind him cobwebbed doors you will enjoy "Drag Net" immensely. As a matter of fact you will enjoy it all the way through.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 11.

LARRY of a modern Pepys: Up and to see Blush, the last and best of Hippodrome clowns, a shy, pensive little fellow who has made millions laugh. Yet he finds the professional road rocky, albeit reveals more artistry than 90 per cent of present day vaudeville turns.

To walk in the Negro section of Harlem and an unconscious gaiety and banter there not found elsewhere in the city and surprisingly scant poverty, too. And the cellar cabarets were advertising cake-walk contests, indicating a revival of this high-stepping of the Nineties.

The zebra is the most difficult wild animal to train. The zebra is not ferocious nor unresponsive to human kindness. He is just exasperatingly dumb. Thus ends the lesson in zoology. Tomorrow icthyology. Bring the kiddies.

AN upper Broadway restaurant there is a white-haired boy who is stone deaf. In the heyday of the Cafe Lafayette he was the most popular doorman. Many waiters, I am told, suffer from ear trouble as much as from scurvy. The sudden change from heat of the kitchen to the draft of electric fans is said to be responsible.

AN ultra apartment house, opened this spring, required 10 letters of reference from prospective tenants. Two bank references were further required and no children or dogs were permitted in the building. Three months later a red hot mama tenant plugged her sweet papa with a bullet. It shows no matter how careful they are in New York, anything may happen when love scoots out the window. Apartment houses where slippery and philandering gentlemen are known by names not even elevator operators call them "cise."

And elevator men consider such posts the best in the city, because tipping is likely to be more elegant. (Copyright, 1928.)

JESSE JONES CHOICE OF TEXAS DEMOCRATS

Man Who Started as Mule Driver Got Convention for Houston.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 11.—Jesse H. Jones, mule driver extraordinary, is recommended by Texas Democrats for the job of riding the donkey in the presidential derby next November.

When Democrats of the nation come to Houston June 26 to select a jockey, their Texas hosts will suggest the right man can be found in this city.

It was Jesse Jones who won the national convention for Houston, and it was his No. 80 built in less than 90 days the huge new hall in which the delegates will assemble. The two things he achieved in the spirit he drove mules on his father's farm in Tennessee.

Made Plowing Record.

Only two mules were driven by Jones in his boyhood, and for only half a day at that. But in that time he plowed a field which the same mules with another driver had never been able to cover in less than two days.

Jesse Jones still was a boy when his father died, leaving the farm to three daughters and bequeathing $2000 to each of two sons. The boys gave the money to their sisters to clear the mortgage on the farm and set out almost penniless on their careers.

At 19 Jones got a job as a laborer in a lumber yard at Dallas. He worked in the heat, in the spirit he drove mules and he became manager of the yard at 21. Three years later he was general manager of the company. Then he organized a lumber company of his own, making it the largest in the southwest.

Now Owns 29 Buildings.

The lumber business led him into building enterprises. The boy who in half a day became an extraordinary mule driver needed only a few years to become a master builder. In Houston alone he has built and now owns 29 buildings, among them the Rice Hotel, the largest hostelry in the South.

A dozen of the finest office and theater buildings in Dallas and Fort Worth are his. New York also is in the scene of his building operations. There the Houston Properties Corporation of New York of which Jones is the principal stockholder, has eight huge structures, including a 14-story office building now under construction at 15 East Fortieth street.

Jones is president of several financial institutions and also publisher of the Houston Chronicle. Cleared Party of Deficit.

The Democratic National Committee called on him to direct its financial affairs during the 1924 campaign. The defeat in the election left the party facing a large deficit, but Jones attacked the problem, and the party has a surplus on the eve of its next campaign.

Jones is an able public speaker, and has an impressive appearance because of his height of six feet two inches, his broad shoulders and his abundant white hair. He is 54.

He was born April 5, 1874, in Robinson, Kentucky, Tennessee. He married Mrs. Mary Gibbs Jones of Houston, Dec. 15, 1920. Mr. and Mrs. Jones make their home at the Lamar Hotel, which he owns.

WIT BLOCKS REORGANIZATION PLAN OF ST. LOUIS PUMP CO.

William Maffitt Bates, a Stockholder, Says Minority Would Be Injured by Move.

The St. Louis Pump & Equipment Co., 2701 Forest Park boulevard, was temporarily restrained from carrying out a proposed reorganization plan, under an order issued today by Circuit Judge Mix on petition of William Maffitt Bates, an attorney and stockholder in the company. A hearing on the request for a permanent order was set for June 21.

Bates, in his petition, asserted a plan for reorganization proposed to stockholders would benefit a small group of the majority stockholders and injure the holdings of the minority stockholders. Bates, according to the petition, holds 62 shares. The proposal, the petition states, was to be acted on in a stockholders' meeting Wednesday. Bates also asked for a receiver.

The reorganization proposal, according to the petition, calls for formation of a new corporation to take over the assets of the present company.

PERSHING BACK FROM FRANCE Report He Seeks Presidential Nomination "News to Him."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Gen. John J. Pershing, who arrived from France on the Leviathan today, refused to discuss a report he was a candidate for the presidential nomination except to say that it was "news to him." He inquired the origin of the report and was referred to recent messages from Paris saying he had departed in great haste for America in order to be near the Kansas City convention.

Gen. Pershing replied that he had booked passage more than a month ago but a late appointment had prevented him from going aboard until a few moments before the sailing time. The General has been six weeks in France heading the monument commission for the erection of memorials to American dead. He said he might go to Kan-

A loaded truck of the Hunkins-Willis Lime and Cement Co. broke through the wooden railing of the bridge over the River des Peres on LaClede Station road in Webster Groves at 10:30 a. m. today, falling 10 feet and breaking a gas main. The driver, A. Walker, a Negro, was taken from the wreckage unconscious, apparently having been overcome by gas.

SEVEN PLANES FOR AIR-TRAIN SERVICE

Each to Be Equipped for 14 Passengers on Transcontinental Route.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 11.—New details of the transcontinental air-mail passenger service were announced yesterday by the National Air Transport.

Included in the newest plans for carrying passengers from New York to Los Angeles is the use of seven planes with three or more motors, each carrying 14 passengers and two pilots. A second detail is the location of the general office building on the Chicago municipal airport, the purchase of a second hangar and the determination to build a third here, and the location here of the airplane repair depot and motor overhauling department, formerly in Cleveland.

The overhauling shop for the southwestern division, now located at Kansas City, also will be brought here soon.

The seven new planes, he divulged, are to cost $500,000, according to Paul Henderson, general manager of National Air Transport. They will carry radios and provide passengers with buffet luncheons. R. W. Ireland, general traffic manager of the company and Maj. H. H. Arnold of the Army air service have completed arrangements for 19-hour airmail service from Washington to President Coolidge's summer White House at Brule, Wis.

Mail leaving Washington at 3:20 o'clock in the afternoon will be placed on the President's desk at 10:30 o'clock the next morning. Brule is 400 miles north of Chicago. Virtually the same schedule will apply to the return mail.

UNION MEN SKEPTICAL ABOUT AUTO PARADE ON LABOR DAY

Afraid Display of Prosperity Will Have Bad Effect on Employers.

A proposal that Labor Day be celebrated with an automobile parade met with opposition at a meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday on the ground that the spectacle of union workers touring the city in their gaily decorated machines might lead employers to conclude that labor is becoming "too wealthy," and embarrass wage committees in their negotiations for increased pay.

Interest in Labor day parades began to lag in 1920, when the building crafts withdrew from the parade. The parade form of celebration was continued for two years more, but in 1923 it was decided to change the program to a picnic at Triangle Park, 4100 South Broadway. The attendance at the picnic was so small that demonstrations were discontinued for three years until last year when the first motorized parade was held. The demonstration was under the auspices of a group of the co-operative 4-H Club concerns and the majority of the machines in the parade belonged to business houses.

Because of the differences of opinion expressed at yesterday's meeting the subject of a Labor day celebration will be left to a decision of the Executive Committee of the Central Trades.

HUNG JURY AT FOURTH TRIAL

FOR SLAYING OF CONSTABLE

Ben Wade Alleged to Have Shot Officer Who Raided Gambling Game at Caruthersville.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW MADRID, Mo., June 11.—After a protracted court fight, Ben Wade is still under indictment for the alleged killing of Constable Macie Stubblefield at Caruthersville, Nov. 12, 1922. A hung jury stood 11 to 1 for acquittal, was dismissed after it was unable to reach an agreement.

On information that a gambling game was going on in an underground basement in a Negro section of town, Stubblefield made a raid. Wade is alleged to have shot him fatally from behind a door.

The first trial was brought here in 1923 on a charge of venue from Pemiscot County. Wade was convicted and given 15 years in prison.

The Supreme Court reversed the decision because the lower court had refused to admit Wade's alibi in defense in that term, and had forced him to trial. In 1925 the case came up again. The jury was unable to agree. Another trial in 1927 ended likewise.

RIOT AT NON-STOP DANCE

CONTEST; LEADERS ARRESTED

Spectators Swarm on Floor and Fight When Judge Disqualifies Pair for Stalling.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Rioting that for a time threatened serious consequences early today broke the monotony of the National Marathon Dance contest.

The troupe started when one of the six surviving pairs was ruled off the floor. The pair, Harry Freeman and Ida Posen, had danced 205 hours. They were accused of stalling.

Their trainer stalked to the floor and hit the field judge on the jaw. A throng of spectators, jeering and cheering, swarmed onto the floor and engaged in a frantic encounter. Police subdued the rioters, the leaders going to jail.

It was said the disqualified pair was a favorite with gambling fraternity.

LABOR'S DEMANDS ON BOTH PARTIES DRAFTED

Committee of Federation to Present Suggestions for Platforms at Conventions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Labor representatives, who will offer suggestions for the platforms at Kansas City and Houston, are especially desirous of having both major parties declare themselves on the antitrust laws as they relate to the working man and on the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

As regards injunctions the Federation wants laws "which will define and prevent the jurisdiction of equity courts in the issuance of injunctions against labor as a result of controversies which may arise between employers and employees."

The Government also is urged to deal with the problem of unemployment "in a practical and constructive way," and maintenance of the estate tax and opposition to forms of sales taxes are included in the 19 recommendations of the Federation.

Members of the committee, be-

Frank Morrison, Secretary; James

O'Connell, T. A. Rickert, Matthew

Woll and Martin F. Ryan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The sentimental decline in the market price of the Bancitaly Corporation common stock on the New York Curb Market, coupled with an increase in call money rate from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent, started a fresh torrent of selling on the New York Stock Exchange today. Prices of active stocks broke 2 to 21 1/4 points in what was probably the swiftest and most violent reaction of the year.

The decline in Bancitaly issue was ascribed chiefly to selling by stockholders on the Pacific Coast, where it is said, general liquidation has taken place recently in stocks of many banks. It was said at the New York offices of the corporation that A. P. Giannini and other executives some time ago expressed the opinion that the stock was selling at levels higher than warranted.

Bancitaly common,
which solds high as 22 in April, broke to 132 on the curb market today. The decline of 19 1/4 points in 14 minutes was the most violent reaction of the year.

The decline was only moderate in volume during the early part of the session, assumed gigantic proportions in the last hour of trading. The day's sales aggregated 3,738,800 shares, with the ticker 52 minutes late in recording the final transaction.

Curiously, the break came at a time when the market appeared to be on the verge of a technical rally after a week of declining prices, selling pressure had relaxed somewhat during the session, a number of issues led by Radio, began to show independent strength.
The rallies were quickly checked, however, by the heavy liquidation of frightened investors and speculators, which was stimulated by the marking up of the call money rate from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent as funds were withdrawn from the market.

Rossia Insurance Off 2 1/4.

Some selling came into the market at the opening as a result of the unexpectedly large decline in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, last month, made public after the close of the market Saturday, and the announcement a day or two ago that automobile tire prices, political uncertainties also accounted for much liquidation throughout the day.

High-priced specialties, particularly those in which there has been wild public speculation, were the hardest hit. Rossia Insurance scored the largest break, dropping 21 1/4 points to 17 3/4. Curtiss and Wright each fell about 12 points to 183 1/2 and 185 1/4, respectively, as compared with their recent highs of 192 1/2 and 245. American Bank Note, Case Threshing, Cushman's Bakery, Jewel Tea, National Tea, Frank G. Shattuck and U. S.
Cast Iron Pipe dropped 8 to 10 points.

General Motors Down 6 Points.

General Motors closed with a block of 37,000 shares at the spread price of 131 to 131 1/4, an extreme decline of 6 points. American International, American Railway Express, American Water Works, Bayuk Cigars, Chrysler, Electric Auto Lite, Lito Oil, International Combination, International Match preferred, International Telephone, Mathieson Alkali, Park
4, Tiford and Universal Pipe dropped 5 to 7 points.

Seasonal Industrials Down.

Such seasonal industrials as American Telephone, Anaconda Copper, General Electric, Montgomery-Ward, Texas Gulf Sulphur and U. S. Steel closed at net declines of 2 to 5 points. Railroads also were hard hit. Canadian Pacific dropping more than 5 points, while those of others, including New York Central, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Wabash, Southern Railway, Reading and Lehigh Valley yielded 2 points or more.

Relatively few issues were able to buck the downward trend. Radio closed fractionally higher at 184 1/4, after having touched 201.

Call money remained at 5 1/4 per cent, but advanced to 6 in the late afternoon. Time money rates were slightly easier, falling at 5 1/4 to 5 1/2, as compared with 5 1/4 to 5 1/2 last week. Commercial paper dropped 1 to 1 1/2 points.

Exchange Unusually Lower.

Foreign exchange moved irregularly, with a 10-point break in Japanese yen to 45.50 cents as the outstanding feature. Sterling

OHIO GAME CONSERVATIONIST STUDYING MISSOURI METHODS

J. W. Stuber Meets M. R. Huff of Illinois League and Clark McAdams in St. Louis.

J. W. Stuber, secretary of the Ohio Conservation Council, a newly organized civic body including eight State-wide organizations in its membership; secretary of the League of Ohio Sportsmen and formerly assistant chief of the fish and game division of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, was in St. Louis yesterday and today in the administration of Missouri and other middle western states. Among those with whom he conferred were M. H. Huff of the Southern Illinois Sportsmen's League and Clark McAdams of the Post-Dispatch editorial staff.

A State Department of Conservation is under consideration in Ohio to remove the fish and game interests from the hands of politicians, Stuber said. The conservation council represents 500,000 persons.

Ohio sportsmen, the visitor added, contribute $400,000 annually to maintain the fish and game division and are demanding a non-partisan control of its affairs.

Nothing can excuse perspiration odor

To be safe, keep your pores purified

THE LURE of many an attractive girl has been ruined by . . . perspiration odor.

Many a clever man, too, has found himself cut out of popularity and business opportunity because of this same unpardonable fault.

Yet how needlessly! Of course, we have to perspire. Health demands it. Even on a cool day, our pores give off about a quart of odor-causing waste. We become all too easily accustomed to this odor ourselves, but others detect it instantly.

Now—a deodorizing toilet soap

Yet it's so easy to guard against offending now. Millions have found that regular bathing with Lifebuoy not only purifies and invigorates, but assures bath-to-bath freshness of body.

Lifebuoy's mild and abundant antiseptic lather deeply purifies all pores. Doesn't hide odor, or merely neutralize it—but removes its cause.

Lifebuoy's gentle antiseptic lather removes germs, too—thus guarding health. Makes complexion fresh and clear. You'll delight in Lifebuoy for every toilet purpose.

What a clean scent!

DINNER TONIGHT IN HONOR
OF REFEREE WALTER D. COLESCelebration Will Mark His 30 Years' Continuous Service to Federal District Court.

Referee in Bankruptcy Walter D. Coles will be honored at a special dinner meeting of the St. Louis Bar Association at Hotel Chase tonight in celebration of his 30 years' continuous service as Referee here.

Coles' efficiency in bankruptcy matters is best exemplified by the fact that he has been reappointed every two years since 1928 by both Democratic and Republican Federal Judges. A native of Albemarle County, Va., he was educated at the University of Virginia and at the St. Louis Law School, now part of Washington University. Following his graduation in 1892 he practiced law here until 1894, when he was appointed Assistant United States District Attorney. He served in this capacity until his appointment as Referee four years later by the late Judge Elmer B. Adams, a Democrat.

Although a Democrat, Coles was reappointed regularly by the late Federal Judges G. A. Finkelnburg and D. P. Dyer, Republicans, and subsequently by the late District Judge Charles B. Paris, a Democrat. During his 30 years as Referee, Coles has administered many large, bankrupt estates, including the E. G. Lewis enterprises, Tempco, Corn &amp; Fruit Products Corp., Indiana Corp. and more recently the David Jones Co. and the Ferguson-McKinney Mfg. Co. In the latter case creditors received more than $1,300,000, or about 40 per cent of their losses.

Coles is unmarried and resides at 3737 Washington boulevard.

INDUSTRIAL ADVERTISERS'

NATIONAL CONFERENCE OPENS

How to Reduce Selling Costs
Theme of Three-Day Convention at Hotel Chase.

The National Industrial Advertisers' Association opened its seventh annual conference at Hotel Chase today with approximately 250 delegates from the various states and Canada in attendance. The conference will continue tomorrow and Wednesday.

Addressees of welcome were made by Harry Richards, representing Mayor Miller, and Percy Redmond, speaking for the Chamber of Commerce. H. P. Thomas presided at the morning session.

The theme of the convention—how industrial advertising can reduce selling costs—was discussed by W. W. Galbreath of Warren, O., president of the Youngstown Pressed Steel Co.

At this afternoon's general session there will be talks by George D. Crain Jr. of Chicago, Sherman Ferry of Middlebury, O., and Arthur L. Little, Lorain, O. Reports on advertising cost systems, educational work, marketing problems, and the Harvard and Shaw awards will occupy this afternoon's business session. Today's meeting will close with group meetings of industrial advertisers, agencies, and publishers.

TURNS SON OVER TO POLICE
FOR LEAVING ACCIDENTAlbert Schmidke Informed That His Boy Had Run Down Man
Waits Till 4:30 A. M. for Him.

Albert Schmidke, Jr., 19 years old, of 206 Wilson avenue, Kirkwood, was turned over to police of the Mounted District yesterday by his father on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

The youth admitted that he drove a machine which struck Henry Pink, 45, an iron worker, of 6404 Lloyd avenue, at Tamm and Manchester avenues at 9:30 p. m. Saturday. The license number of his machine was supplied police by witness to the accident and the boy's father was notified. Schmidke waited up until 4:30 a. m. yesterday for his son to return home and then took him to the police station.

Young Schmidke stated that he stopped after striking Pink, but on finding the latter was injured seriously, became frightened and fled. He was released on bond. Pink is at City Hospital with a fractured left leg and possible skull fracture.

STREET CAR CONDUCTOR HITS
PASSENGER WITH SWITCH BAR

In an altercation with the conductor of a City Limits street car over payment of a fare early today, William Lawler, a plumber, of 6744 Nashville avenue, was hit on the head with a switch bar. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, suffering from a possible skull fracture and injured right eye.

The conductor, Thomas Gaines, 5971 Theodosia avenue, was arrested by Richmond Heights police.

Lawler, according to the police account, refused to pay a fare demanded by Gaines. The conductor said Lawler became abusive and, near Oakland and Yale avenue, so he used his switch bar.

The HUMAN BODY

LOGAN
CLENDENING,
M.D.

The Mechanism of the Eye, How It Transmits Images to the Brain, and a Brief Outline of Some of the Diseases to Which It Is Liable.

THE eye and the ear are, of all the organs of special sense, particularly liable to disease. Their complexity adds to the liability. It is not always remembered that they are a part of the body, made up of living tissue, and subject to all the pathologic processes which affect all the other living tissues.

The eye is an optical instrument much like a camera. The lens of the camera, which can be adjusted to the proper amount of light, is like the pupil or iris of the eye. It is a circular muscle-fiber. The photographic plate is represented by the retina, which contains the end-plates of the optic nerve, extremely complicated structures called rods and cones. Blindness may be due to a derangement of any of the parts of the eye, as failure to take a picture may be caused by derangement of various parts of the camera. The plate may be fogged or broken; the retina may be diseased. The lens of the camera may be dirty; the lens of the eye may be blurred by cataract. The shutter may be out of order; the iris may be inflamed. This last trouble usually does not result in an entire failure to make a photograph with the camera, nor complete blindness in the eye, but it will result in a poor picture and visual disturbance.

The eye, however, differs from the camera in three particulars: (1) In front of its lens is a protective hard surface, the cornea. (2) The medium between the lens and the camera lens is air; the medium in the eye for the lens divides it into two chambers, air fluid called humors. Between the cornea and the lens, in the anterior chamber, is the aqueous humor; between the lens and the retina, in the posterior chamber, is the vitreous humor. (3) The camera brings the object into the focus by changing the distance between the lens and the plate; the eye makes this optical accommodation by changing the thickness of the lens. These three circumstances lead to other sets of derangements which may occur to the eye.

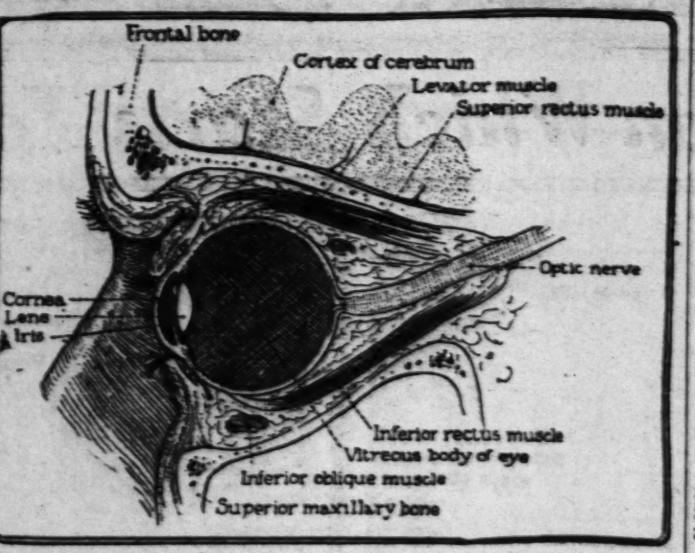

Briefly, then, we may consider the disease of the eye under the headings of disease of the (1) retina, (2) lens, (3) iris, (4) cornea, (5) humors, (6) accommodation. One of the great advances in the study of the eye was the invention of the ophthalmoscope by Helmholtz. This instrument is constructed so that light can be thrown into the back of a living eye and it has lenses so that the entire retina can be inspected. There is a passage in Helmholtz's diary which is a poem in itself; it recalls Keats' "On First Looking Into Chapman's Homer;" he writes in the day of his success: "The first model was constructed of pasteboard, eye lenses, and cover glasses used in microscopic work. It was at first so difficult to use that I doubt if I should have persevered unless I had felt that it must succeed; but today I have the great joy of being the first who saw before him a living human retina."

The optic nerve being a part of the retina, it should be noted that it degenerates or atrophies, causing complete blindness. Various infections will do this, the commonest being syphilis. Indeed, the eye is particularly subject to this disease—syphilis. Hemorrhage into the retina from disease of the blood vessels may occur in arteriosclerosis, Bright's disease, and diabetes. Tumors may affect the retina. A peculiar disease is detachment of the retina, which is detachment of the retina, which a prominent oculist considers to have been the cause of Milton's blindness.

It might be caused by infection carried to the lens from some other part of the body or, as in the usual form in old people, be the result of poor nourishment. In all cases its origin is somewhat obscure. Vision is restored by removal of the lens, a simple operation in competent hands.

Iritis, or inflammation of the iris, tortures certain people all their lives with recurrent attacks. It is always caused by an infection, sometimes of an abscessed tooth or tonsil, sometimes an infection peculiar to the iris which goes by the name of rheumatic iritis, although what that means no one knows. The cornea, being next to the outer world, is liable to abrasion, fine bits of dust or steel, to burns, from hot sparks, etc., and to infection all coming from outside. The great cause of blindness in infants of being born blind, is an infection of the cornea by gonorrhoea. The cause of the venereal disease gonorrhoea, the gonococcus, lives well in the genital tract of the human female. A mother may be infected at the time of childbirth and the child's eyes filled with gonococcal pus on the way through the birth canal. Fortunately there is a certain way of preventing this scourge which used to kill blind-angulism. A solution of silver nitrate is dropped in the baby's open eye immediately after birth. All states in the Union have mandatory statutes providing for this. It has

Slight optical defects in the eye, almost inevitable in a structure made of soft living tissue, are corrected by the fitting of spectacles. It is doubtful whether any one thing which man has accomplished has raised him further above the level of the beasts than the wearing of spectacles.

As Clarence Day said some time ago, this being a simian civilization, and the outstanding characteristic of simians being chatter, we are likely to attach a disproportionate amount of importance to those inventions which in some way increase our ability to talk to the telephone, the radio, the photograph. Humble inventions, however, really of much greater usefulness, and none more than spectacles. Suppose a wild animal has a myopia, or shortsightedness; it cannot see the approach of its enemy, nor the exact location of the prey, and dies by violence and starvation. A modern woman with the same optical defect and intellectual purpose is fitted with glasses, and in consequence spears her prey and defends herself gallantly.

How long men have worn spectacles is a subject of some controversy among medical historians. Rivalto, a monk of Pisa, in 1305

Kitchen Kinks.

Canton flannel makes a good jelly bag.

Finely chopped nuts and raisins are delicious in whole wheat bread.

To avoid the dryness of Hamburg steak, have the butcher grind three-quarters beef and one-quarter pork.

When boiling ham or tongue for sandwiches or a cold lunch, let the meat in the liquor in which it has been cooked. It will improve the flavor.

Chopped pimento on the top of the mayonnaise dressing on a sandwich is a good idea to make it appear appetizing.

Carlin Tarts.

Into two cups of unsweetened applesauce stir one cup sugar, the juice and grated rind of one-half lemon, one tablespoon flour and the yolks of three eggs. Place in tart shells and bake until the centers are firm. Make a meringue of the three egg whites and three tablespoons pulverized sugar and place on top of each tart. Brown lightly. A delicate little dessert that just seems to fit in nicely with the fish dinner.

wrote that spectacles had been invented about 20 years before. The inventor was probably a Florentine named d'Armatto. On his tombstone, in the church of Santa Croce, the inscription reads: "Here lies Salvino d'Armatto degli Armati of Florence, the inventor of spectacles. May God forgive his sins. Anna Domini 1317."

Jan van Eyck's bishop at Bruges holds spectacles. But the Chinese have used them for countless centuries and snow-spectacles were used by the Samoyed tribes near the Arctic circle when they were first met by travelers. Professor Greif of Berlin made an interesting discovery, reported in 1912, of the finding of eight pairs of old-type leather-mounted spectacles behind the wooden walruscot of Willibald Pirkheimer's chamber at Nuremberg. Pirkheimer, who died in 1530, was a friend of Luther and a counsellor of Maximilian I. The lenses of these spectacles were mounted in leather and the whole appliance was of considerable weight. They had to be supported on the nose by the hand, which must have been fatiguing. They cost from $50 to $75 apiece, so that even a wealthy Nuremberg merchant must have been proud of his lay-out of eight pairs.

Sheets and Table Cloths Now Silks

Patented U. S. Patent Office

Climb Down!

PARIS handworkers, who include thousands of Russians, have a comparatively new industry in the making of luxurious silk articles of bedding and table use.

Silk sheets now are regarded by the wealthy as near necessities, judging from the numbers in which they are purchased in the Rue de la Paix.

Not only silk bedding but silk table covers lavishly worked by hand are in big demand. The tablecloths, some made from materials as sheer as chiffon, vary from finest drawwork to heavy rayon. The latter are made several times as heavy by the weight of the silk embroidery put on them, sometimes in color and sometimes in white or cream. To the uninitiated the raw silk coverings look like heavy lace.

The case with which silk materials of modern manufacture can be washed is responsible for their growing household use, one dealer explained. The demand for colors, he said, is another factor in the growing popularity of silk. His firm, he said, sells 10 colored silk sheets for every white one.

This dish may not be just as fashionable as in by-gone days, but it is just as good and always welcome with pleasure at the mid-night meal. One-half pound store cheese, one tablespoon butter, one-quarter teaspoon mustard, one-eighth teaspoon red pepper, one-third cup cream, one egg. Chip the cheese and put it and the seasonings into a pan containing melted butter. Add the cream gradually as the cheese melts, stirring constantly. Then add slightly-beaten egg. ## Fish Straight from the Ocean to Your Table!

ALWAYS FRESH—NEVER FROZEN

YOU can now enjoy choice ocean fish that is absolutely fresh. You can have prime deep-sea haddock—fish as sweet and tender tasting as ever tumbled out of a net. "40-Fathom" is the trade name of fish which is caught by the Bay State Fishing Company's big fleet of steam trawlers, far out in the ocean. Each catch is carefully sorted and only the choicer fish are selected for your table.

40-Fathom Haddock comes to you in the form of fillets—the clear white breasts and sides of the fish. Heads, tails, backbone and all waste are removed. Then these savory fish steaks are individually wrapped in parchment paper, iced and fast-expressed to your dealer. Ready to put on the fire and cook. A new, delicious shore delicacy on your table, whether you live near the sea or far inland.

Nothing is so unwise as buying second-grade fillets. Ask your butcher, grocer or fish dealer for 40-Fathom Fish, which is never frozen or preserved but always fresh and sweet—"the cream of the catch"—Bay State Fishing Company, 30 Fish Pier, Boston.

OBED hair is not popular in rural China, so an American missionary in Puting has followed the rule that no girl in her mission school may have her hair cut unless her parents are willing.

One day a 13-year-old girl had her hair cut, with her parents' permission. She was followed by a servant in the missionary's household, who, asked in high temper, if his mistress had cut "President Jade's" hair. It came out that he was engaged to the girl and was paying for some of her schooling and many of her clothes. He insisted he had some rights in the matter.

Three days later the little daughter of the gate woman at the school appeared with short hair, and the missionary learned that the servant himself had wielded the scissors. One good look at his future wife had convinced him that the bobbing custom was desirable.

People are now moving back into the inner ring of London suburbs as large blocks of flats are going up.

PERSONAL RECOLLECTIONS OF
MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT JR.

EIGHTH ARTICLE—I WAS AN ONLY CHILD.

BING an only child, I know all the disadvantages. I know all the child who has led a somewhat nomadic existence is apt to run into trouble when thrust out into the practical, hard-hearted world.

When I was a girl people used to whisper around the house and talk about me. They conversed earnestly as to whether I was "doing too much." They urged me to lie down and rest if I looked tired.

My, but I did an awful dumb thing at school! They asked me that and I put down "Bacchus."

Quentin went to school at rather an early age because he felt lost all day without his sister and brothers. When he was promoted to real report cards, he succeeded in getting his name on the honor-roll. Bursting with pride, he exhibited his gold star to everyone in the house. He then felt that having attained the honor-roll he would automatically stay there without further effort, and the next week he did no work whatever.

Monday came and with it reports. Quentin was at the foot of his class. It was a distinct and unexpected blow. During the nine-mile drive to the house he reflected, and decided that the story had better be brought home by some one other than himself. He appealed to the other children. They were adamant. At last, after much persuasion, he induced the colored chauffeur to break the news.

My assistant with the children is Signorina, an Italian lady who has been with us eight years. She is a charming person, and the children are devoted to her. During the war she nursed at the front and received every decoration, including the Italian Government gold star.

WEN the Puppy-Ups got their colors, the White Roosters naturally could not be left out. They knew just what they wanted, too. In our family, on the sad occasions when it is necessary, punishment is generally administered with the back of a hair-brush. For a few minutes all was still; but when I was dropping off to sleep the second time, they remembered things they had forgotten to tell each other, and started shouting through the halls. I used to go to bed with cotton in my ears, but it never did any good.

THE Roosevelt family enjoyed far too much to be willing to waste time sleeping. Every night they stayed downstairs until past midnight; then, talking at the tops of their voices, they tramped up the wide, uncarpeted oak staircase and went to their rooms. For a brief ten minutes all was still; but when I was dropping off to sleep the second time, they remembered things they had forgotten to tell each other, and started shouting through the halls. I used to go to bed with cotton in my ears, but it never did any good.

THE first night I said to myself, "Here it is after 1 o'clock. No one is likely to wake us before eight at the earliest. That won't be so bad."

Eight? By six the younger ones were up, and by seven I was the only one who was not joyously beginning the day.

At the end of the summer I had gained immeasurably in valuable experience. Like Kim, I had acquired "the true Oriental indifference to mere noise," and learned to sleep under any, and all conditions. It was splendid training, but while it was going on I lost 26 pounds.

Occasionally, our own children seemed my favorite of the older generation at Sammons Hill. Last summer, in Vermont, the cherries close to the house were nearly ripe. Ted, aged 12, decided he would keep some birds from eating them before they could be made into pies. Accordingly he collected all the bells he could find, or borrow; large bells, small bells, caskets, sleigh-bells and a great dinner bell. These were tied to the branches of the big, old tree. A network of twine connected each bell with a main string leading into his window. At daybreak next morning he pulled the string back and forth. An indescribable clamor arose. It woke everybody in the house, and from every window appeared startled and angry heads. Poor Teddy was forced to give up his work of conservation.

The children are forbidden to eat green cherries. On the face of it this would seem a perfectly natural and reasonable rule. I used to discuss it, but it is very far from being as simple as that. Each year the question is debated at length as to what constitutes a cherry. Each year brings its cherry casualties. This summer, Sonny, aged 11, and Quentin, 6, were the worst victims. Quentin, I am sure, was the only one who could stand the taste of a cherry. Each year brings its cherry casualties. This summer, Sonny, aged 11, and Quentin, 6, were the worst victims. Quentin, I am sure, was the only one who could stand the taste of a cherry.

"Tell me," I persisted, "exactly what you were doing with that little, soft, rubber ball."

"Why, mother, I wasn't—well, you see, there was a hole in it."

"What was it for?" I inquired.

"That's just what's so funny," he answered. "I didn't do a single thing."

"Oh, no, mother, of course not!" At recess. And Mr. Remsen came along and said I was bad and gave me an order mark."

Here, apparently, was a case of unjust tyranny enough to make one's blood boil. Luckily a maternal sixth sense made me cautious.

"Tell me," I persisted, "exactly what you were doing with that little, soft, rubber ball."

"During study-period?"

"Oh, no, mother, of course not!" At recess. And Mr. Remsen came along and said I was bad and gave me an order mark."

At daybreak next morning he pulled the string back and forth. An indescribable clamor arose. It woke everybody in the house, and from every window appeared startled and angry heads. Poor Teddy was forced to give up his work of conservation.

The children are forbidden to eat green cherries. On the face of it this would seem a perfectly natural and reasonable rule.

I used to discuss it, but it is very far from being as simple as that.

Each year the question is debated at length as to what constitutes a cherry. Each year brings its cherry casualties. This summer, Sonny, aged 11, and Quentin, 6, were the worst victims. Quentin, I am sure, was the only one who could stand the taste of a cherry.

"Tell me," I persisted, "exactly what you were doing with that little, soft, rubber ball."

"Why, mother, I wasn't—well, you see, there was a hole in it."

"What was it for?" I inquired.

"That's just what's so funny," he answered. "I didn't do a single thing."

"Why, that's impossible! You must have done something. Tell me what happened."

THREE GENERATIONS

By WARWICK DEEPING □ AUTHOR OF SORRELL AND SON

SYNOPSIS.

Old John Pybus, formerly a book seller in London and later in Winterbourne, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven, when his son, Conrad, sees him there. He's been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Probyn, that he has seen his father. Probyn's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead, but he looks him up at the Saracen's Head without telling his parents.

INSTALLMENT XV.

AN INVITATION.

A SMILE passed between Lance and his grandfather. They stood side by side watching the kettle, and waiting for its voice to be raised.

"I say—ought I to have put some hot water in the teapot?"

"Never mind today."

"Sins of omission! Tell me, grandpa was that true?"

"What?"

"That you haven't had a holiday for years."

"What is a holiday?"

"Then you haven't?"

"I have not removed my body to some place by the sea-side or into Wales or the lake district. But the other part of me has traveled."

"Have you ever been to Cambridge, grandpa?"

Lance's face was very serious.

"I'm going again next Tuesday. My last year. Would you come up for a few days this term, and stay with me? I can get you a room outside, and you could feed with me."

Old Pybus looked hard at him and was silent.

"I'd love you to come up, grandpa. I want you to meet two or three fellows, Sorrell and Frensham. And we should be able to talk. I shouldn't have to rush off."

Having filled the teapot, he glanced at his grandfather, who was holding the lid of it.

"Will you?"

"My son," said old Pybus. "I will."

"I make one condition, Lance."

"Yes, grandpa."

"I pay. Do you understand me?"

"But you will be my guest."

"Not exactly—yours. God forgive both our pride."

Lance looked at his grandfather with a flushed seriousness.

"Yes—I understand. I'm sorry—Of course."

"There's no need for you to be sorry. The old Pybus with a blue flame in the eye. 'The Roots' of the Saracen's Head visits his grandson at Trinity. I take off my hat to my grandson, and I take off my hat to myself."

Lance helped himself to strawberry jam. If the moment was rich in emotion, it had other inflections, and little jarrings of the memory. Was the mood of the moment ever of one texture, simple and continuous, like a red or yellow jelly? You saw people like figures in a landscape. The very "I" of yourself was a complex of seeming contradictions. The Venerable walking round the great court at Trinity would seem a part of the mysterious reality of things. Whereas this father—! Lance had heard men say, "Awful bore, but the government's coming up for the week end," though some of them were not ashamed of their father and may have felt for them a tokens of affection. What was snobbery? If your father made the intimate inward self you wince, was that snobbery? And yet how queer it was that he should be conscious of pride at the thought of walking about Cambridge with his grandfather, a little old fellow in a bowler hat. Was it affection or a mere flush of egotism, or defiance? Was there not some deep and rather sacred bond between them? But how ironical! The Venerable had been the despised and the disdained of his sons and the sons of one or the sons was reversing the process, not as a prig, but rather as a disciple.

With his elbows on the table, and his eyes fixed on his grandfather's plate, Lance made his confession.

"The pater has been rather decent. I told him—He has offered me two years."

"An allowance?"

"Two hundred a year for two years—and when I go down, I'm wondering whether I ought to take it."

"You have taken—it for 20 years."

"I know. But this is different. I'm self-conscious."

"More so, Lance?"

"Yes, another cup. I want you to tell me something, grandfather."

"Well?"

"Did you ever feel—an enemy—in your own father?"

"Yes—and no. We clashed—sometimes. What else can you expect? Two live personalities. Just as Probyn and Conrad clashed with me. But my father had a sense of justice. In these days you'd call him a sportman."

"But you had a sense of justice?"

"Generations differ in their ideas of justice. What's to happen at the end of these two years?"

Lance took the cup from his grandfather's outstretched hand. He looked at the cup and not at the Venerable's face, but he seemed to be aware of the Venerable's eyes looking at him and into him. His grandfather had asked the one inevitable and pregnant question, just as Lance had realized that he might be expected to ask it.

"He wants to see me fail. He's letting me make a foot of myself. He's quite kind about it—but I'm to the silly prodigal back from the husks. I shall go like a sheep in the shearing pen."

The Venerable had lit his lamp and tilted the shade so that the light shone over his left shoulder.

They looked at each other.

"Did that come to you?"

"Yes, I know. Likes catching some one grinning in a mirror—when you are not supposed to be looking. It's damnable to feel—"

His grandfather got up and reached for his tobacco tin.

"Prove people wrong. That's the only way. Remove that grin. It comes off like a mask—when little manufactured self they'd like to make you. That's the only alternative—that or slavery—soul slavery. It may be a bloody business—like the war, but it's worth it."

When they walked up to the Saracen's yard Lance had a hand tucked under his grandfather's arm.

"I shan't see you again till Cambridge. You—will—come?"

"O yes—I shall come."

"I'll write and let you know. O, perhaps you would like to fit it. The end of the month?"

"You haven't told them yet?"

"No."

Just before getting into the car he remembered something. He drew a long envelope from an inner breast pocket.

"I want you to read some of my stuff, grandpa. Will you?"

Angelo Corello, Shot Down in Street, Second Form Partner of Camelo Fresina to Be Murdered.

WOUNDED FEUD LEADER DETAINED Italian Has Been Questioned in Three Other Killings—One Suspect Under Arrest.

Angelo Corello, who was mortally wounded by assassins at Murphy and Hogan streets in night and hurried to join his wife at dinner in the home of her mother a few steps away, paid with his life for his refusal to become a follower of an Italian gangster, his widow declared today to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

While their 2-year-old daughter played on the floor of the home at 4349 Ashland avenue, Mrs. Corello freely discussed the murderer and named to the reporter the two men she thinks killed her husband because he had refused to join the gang of Camelo Fresina, Italian gangster, feudist, and former partner of Corello in the same business.

Second Partner to Be Slain. Corello was the second partner of Fresina to be murdered after he had broken off relations with the gangster.

As he lay on the sidewalk at 12 o'clock last night with four bullet wounds in his head, Corello nodded assent as his wife asked him if he was an enemy of the idle rich, but the way he clung to that girl's arm proves he must love his enemies! Maybe I made a mistake in offering my services here!

What's this? Great monster! Can Ella possibly be jealous of me? Current? Is she concealing something from us? No, shall see!

RUTH succeeded in marking a cross on the roof of the house where she was hidden and Bobo dashed to the rescue in his faithful plane and then what?

Plane and then what?

Widow Not Afraid of Gang. There is no reason why I should discuss my husband's murderer, Corello said. "He was not a gangster and I am not like these other women who will not talk." My husband had been the partner of Fresina, or Freese, as he calls himself, for seven months and had a saloon at Newstead and Natural Bridges. Since January Freese has been hiding that my husband told the gang my husband refused.

About two weeks ago, so my husband told me, Freese came out of the open.

"Angelo," he said to my husband, "when are you going to help out?"

"What do you mean?" my husband asked.

"You know what I mean," he said.

Sold Interest in Saloon. "Well," my husband said, "I can help out a friend with money, but not the way you mean it would be paid off death."

"He did not tell me how Fresina wanted his help, except that he wanted him to join the gang." When he refused Fresina told him he had better separate and then paid him $200 for his share in the saloon.

That was two weeks ago. A day later two friends of Fresina came to our house and pretended they had fallen out with him. My husband went out with them in an automobile and was convinced that they murdered him last night, the first favorable opportunity that they had.

Their trip in the machine were to help my husband look for a place to start his business with a little store. I am convinced that he had just stepped out of the car when he was killed.

He had left him at home yesterday morning to go to visit his mother, Mrs. Sophie Lemonade, who lives at 1522 Hogan street. Fresina was to meet me there at
